Council's Committee To Investigate Congestion In City's Public Schools

Mayor's Suggestion That Aldermen Appoint School Committee Is Approved and Pres. Schwenk Will Name Members Later.

MAYOR'S LETTER

Communication Tells of Lengthy Conference with School Superintendent B. C. Van Ingen.

The crowded conditions that exist at the Kingston high school and which this fall have extended to at least one of the grade schools in the city led the Board of Education at its last meeting to instruct Superintendent of School B. C. Van Ingen to confer with Mayor C. J. Heiselman seeking a remedy for conditions that exist. As a result of the meeting between the school superintendent and the mayor, the mayor in a communication to the Common Council Tuesday evening suggested that the president of the council appoint a special school committee to investigate the schools in company with Mr. Van Ingen and the mayor. The suggestion of the mayor's was unanimously approved by the council, and President Schwenk stated he would appoint the members of the committee later.

Mayor Heiselman's communication to the council read as follows:

October 6, 1936.
The Honorable,
The Common Council,
Kingston, New York.

Gentlemen:
Superintendent of Schools Van Ingen, acting in accordance with instructions from the Board of Education, called on me yesterday, and conferred with me as to the best method of arranging an approach to the current school problem on the part of the Common Council.

After some discussion, I suggested that a committee of the Common Council and the mayor, accompanied by Superintendent Van Ingen, make an inspection of every school in the city during school hours and to make such other investigation as will fully acquaint them with the problem, in order that the Common Council may have a thorough understanding of the school situation.

I therefore recommend that you authorize your president to appoint a special school committee, headed by himself, and that the survey suggested herein be undertaken at once.

Very truly yours,
C. J. Heiselman,
Mayor.

Count Ciano Next In Line for Duce's Political Authority

Rome, Oct. 7.—Premier Mussolini is grooming his son-in-law, Count Galeazzo Ciano, as his successor, political circles asserted today, and soon may make him head of the Fascist cabinet.

It is reported that Ciano would retain his present post of foreign minister. The elevation of Ciano, informed sources declared, will be discussed at a meeting of the Fascist grand council in November.

They pointed out the change would have only a slight practical effect at present but would furnish the premier with a successor upon his death. It is reported that Ciano would retain his present post of foreign minister.

Count Ciano, who married the premier's daughter, has had wide experience in Italian governmental positions. Although he is only 32 years old, he has held important posts, including the ministerial position, before he became foreign minister.

His admirers cite these qualities: A good personality, ease in making friends, excellent knowledge of languages, widely-traveled, and a good appearance.

Since his return from the Italian Ethiopian War, where he won a silver medal for leading the "Desperado" air bombing squadron, he has appeared widely before the public and made many speeches.

Dunnagan Property Sold

Frederick L. Christians and wife have purchased from Mrs. Minnie E. Dunnagan the five-room bungalow and large grounds located at 34 Fairview avenue. The late Frank Dunnagan while occupying this as his home, landscaped and beautified the property. Mr. Christians, salesman at L. S. Winne & Co., has taken possession of his new purchase and is remodeling and redecorating the house and putting it in first-class shape. The sale was negotiated by Frank S. Hyatt, real estate broker, 277 Fair street.

Charged With Contempt

Anna Kite, 20, of New Paltz, was arrested Tuesday by Deputy Sheriff Vredenburg and Brown on a bench warrant charging contempt of court. The defendant, who was paroled in charge of her attorney, Harold Lent, is charged with having failed to appear before Judge F. G. Traver for examination after having been subpoenaed.

Fierce Dispute Over Plane Contract Breaks Out Between Elliott Roosevelt and Fokker

President's Son is Charged in Manufacturer's Deposition With Agreeing in 1934 to Sell 50 Military Planes to Russia for $500,000 Commission—Roosevelt Says Such Sum Was Never Mentioned and Denies Receiving Any Cash at All From Deal.

Couldn't Roll His Eye For Interne; It's Glass

Monday night, when he examined Joseph Weber, 62, of 54 Howland avenue, in the emergency room at the Kingston Hospital, after an automobile accident, Dr. Maurice M. Mayoff, interne, asked: "Have you ever had trouble with your eye before? Let me see you roll it." "Roll it?" groaned Weber. "How can I? It's glass!" Charles Brodhead, local insurance agent, who told the story to a reporter, said he couldn't help but chuckle at the incident, although it happened under the painful circumstance. "It amused Weber, too, and even the interne, who was doing all within the power of medical science to relieve him of agony from painful cuts and bruises," Brodhead said.

Dr. Mayoff was examining a deep gash over Weber's right eye when he asked the question about rolling it.

Washington, Oct. 7 (UP).—A fierce dispute broke out today over a deposition attributed to Anthony H. G. Fokker, airplane manufacturer, that Elliott Roosevelt, 25-year-old son of the President, contracted in 1934 to sell 50 military planes to Russia for a $500,000 commission. Soon after aides of the Senate munitions committee had made public the sworn statement, which said the sale was never made because the price asked of the Russians was too high, young Roosevelt denied he ever agreed to sell military planes to any government.

He contracted with Fokker, he said, to represent the aviation man in the sale of commercial transport planes to private foreign corporations. There was a specific stipulation, he said, that he was not to sell to any government.

Young Roosevelt, who is at Oklahoma City, told the Fort Worth (Tex.) Star Telegram in a telephone interview that such a figure as $500,000 for a commission was never mentioned.

Whereas the deposition attributed to Fokker said the President's son had been paid $5,000 in cash under the unfulfilled contract, Roosevelt said he never received a dollar personally, although $5,000 went to a salesman associated with him.

Ended Contract Himself
He said he himself terminated the contract without trying to sell a plane.

"I have a copy of the contract," he told the Fort Worth paper. "All this is down in black and white and I shall be glad at any time to present it to the munitions committee along with a complete refutation of all the statements allegedly made by Mr. Fokker."

Fokker was quoted as saying in the deposition he considered the price asked of the Russians for the 50 planes was "notably excessive."

"He (Fokker) had been persuaded by Mr. (Elliott) Roosevelt and Mr. Roosevelt's associate, Mr. Stratton, that Mr. Roosevelt had enough influence with the import and export bank and the Russian purchasing commission, then in the country, to swing the deal at that excessive price," the deposition said.

It quoted Carter Tiffany, of New York, Fokker's American business representative, as declaring that a third party had told him that President Roosevelt approved the contract, but put his foot down on a plan for his son and Fokker to go abroad to sell planes.

Fokker, the document said, had wanted Elliott Roosevelt to make the trip "to attempt to sell airplanes to various foreign governments, counting on the willingness of high foreign officials to receive Mr. Roosevelt as the son of the American President."

Blames "Republicans"
Young Roosevelt, who declared that "this story comes originally from Republican sources," declared:

"With regard to all conversations and reported conversations which had reference to my father, I desire to state that they are false in their entirety and that at no time did the question of my father's participation or knowledge of the transaction enter into my discussion with Mr. Fokker."

The deposition was made public unexpectedly here last night. Munitions committee aides said it was taken September 12, 1935, and was made public now on instructions from Chairman Nye (R-N.D.) because of published charges that information was being withheld from the public. There was no immediate comment from the White House.

The 50 planes involved were of the Lockheed electric type, Fokker being a sales agent for that plane. In addition to his other interests.

The deposition, which was written in the third person, declared: "Mr. Fokker stated that the price calculated by Mr. Roosevelt and his associates and offered to the Russians, was so high that the Russians had nothing to do with the whole business and had not bought any of the planes."

Calls Elliott "Cheater"
Under further questioning by investigators who took the deposition, Fokker was said to have described Elliott Roosevelt and a business associate as "cheaters" because "no action had been taken toward the successful sale of Lockheed planes by Mr. Roosevelt and his associates."

At another point in the deposition an associate of young Roosevelt was represented as threatening to turn "the heat" on if Fokker did not go through with the contract. This man was identified in the deposition only as "Mr. Stratton" but Elliott Roosevelt said J. W. Stratton, an airplane salesman, was associated with him in the sales agreement.

The deposition said that Tiffany, Fokker's representative, "mailed in Mr. Fokker's promise that he, Mr. Tiffany, had complained to Mr. Stratton that he did not like the contract because it was one-sided against Mr. Fokker and entirely in favor of Mr. Roosevelt."

Rumor Swede Seen Over Norway Breeds Hope, But Report is Flouted

Plane Seen Near Coast, Investigation Reveals, is Equipped With Pontoon; Bjorkvall Was Flying Land Plane.

HUNDREDS WAIT

Countrymen Flock to Airdrome at Stockholm in Anticipation of Arrival as Scheduled.

Stockholm, Oct. 7 (UP).—A report that Kurt Bjorkvall, 31-year-old American-to-Sweden flier, had been sighted off the southern coast of Norway caused a brief flurry of excitement today, but investigation disclosed the plane probably was not that of the non-stop airman.

The newspaper Tidningen, after an inquiry, announced the plane seen 40 miles south of Christiansand, Norway, was equipped with pontoon. Bjorkvall, who left New York at 7:35 a. m. Tuesday, was flying a landplane.

It was believed the plane sighted might have been one of those sent out to look for the lone aviator. It was reported seen at 5:15 p. m. (11:15 a. m. Eastern Standard Time).

Christiansand is about 425 miles west of Stockholm.

Hundreds at Airdrome
Swedish folk flocked by the hundreds today to Bromma Airdrome, hours before the expected arrival of Kurt Bjorkvall, 31-year-old airman who is flying alone from New York.

The weather for the final lap of his course was described as generally good by the meteorological service, although Bjorkvall may face a slight head wind after he leaves Ireland.

He had not been reported up to early afternoon.

All preparations at the airdrome had been completed for the reception, although Bjorkvall was not expected before 11 p. m.

Interest was high all over Sweden, since Bjorkvall would be the first transatlantic flier to land in this country.

The Spanish wireless arranged to continue a directional broadcast after its regular program is ended tonight.

Bjorkvall's mother was, perhaps, the most anxious waiter.

She said she had complete confidence in her son's ability and judgment, but she wished he had not tried an Atlantic flight even had the weather been better.

She had offered to assist him remain over the winter in New York, she added, after his Swedish backers withdrew their original support.

Friends Not Apprehensive
New York, Oct. 7 (UP).—Kurt Bjorkvall, 31-year-old Swedish aviator flying alone in an attempted non-stop flight from New York to Stockholm, remained unreported over the Atlantic today although his red and green monoplane was due off the Irish coast.

His craft, the Pacemaker, carried only radio receiving set, and there was no possibility of receiving word of his progress except from ships as he swung over the sea.

Bjorkvall's friends here expressed little apprehension for his safety since the Bellanca plane, driven by a 450-horsepower motor, had a cruising speed of only 90 miles an hour and was not expected to make full speed because of the headwinds predicted near the Irish coast.

They said his supply of gasoline was ample—735 gallons having been pumped into tanks in the wings and fuselage of the Pacemaker before Bjorkvall lifted his wheels from the runways of Floyd Bennett Field for his 4,397-mile flight attempt at 7:35 a. m. Eastern Standard Time yesterday.

Meanwhile, the Baroness Eva von Blixen Fieckow, who had waited two months with Bjorkvall for good flying weather over the Atlantic only to be left behind at the last moment, held her silence at the home of friends on Long Island.

Bjorkvall, sometimes called the "Swedish Lindbergh" because of a resemblance to Col. Charles A. Lindbergh in the lean earnestness of his face, bought the plane a few days ago from the Swedish newspaper that was sponsoring the flight.

Juvenile Delinquency Is Due To Environment Says Wales

Influences Which Touch Children Are Studied by P.-T.A.

The afternoon session of the Fortieth Annual Convention of the New York State Congress of Parents and Teachers, held on Tuesday at the Governor Clinton Hotel, had as its general topic "Specific Community Influences That Touch the Child," under which caption there appeared seven very meaty subjects: Movies, radio, playgrounds, youth organizations, library, church and music; a program conducive to mental degeneration in its ruinous. Mrs. Joseph F. Sahloff, Albany district director, presided.

The presenting of the subjects was slightly changed as to order, the first one to be considered being "Radio," which was put over as a skit by Mrs. Joseph Coffee assisted by several members of the conference, the title being "Telling the World," and pictured the various most effective ways of broadcasting the story of Parent-Teacher activities and helps.

Ald of Newspapers
This discussion amongst several so-called parents and teachers, made plain the desirability, almost the necessity of aid from the newspapers, even in small communities where only weekly newspapers are published. The radio itself was praised as a medium of "telling the world" very literally and was counted the finest type of "salesmanship" of P.-T. A. work, through the possibility of listening audiences and discussion groups. Quite a different sort of broadcaster was the attractive pictorial poster and exhibits at meetings were also praised.

At the recent Century of Progress Fair the exhibits were looked upon as visual demonstrations. The leader of the skit claimed that publicity was to P.-T. A. endeavor what food is to the body. It was said that the public doesn't value what it does know about another avenue of publicity was through the P.-T. A. Bulletin and school newspapers telling what other units are accomplishing.

But when all was said and done, according to the skit, the personal publicity, the good, old-fashioned "grape-vine telegraph," of "word of mouth" from one enthusiast to another was after all the most convincing publicity of all.

Importance of Movies
Mrs. Sahloff next introduced Mrs. Charles Walker, the Albany district movie chairman, and asked how many of the units present had such chairman as they were very important. It was noted that the movies are more widely attractive than the most appalling books but that after all the impressions created by the movies are individual matters looked at in different ways. The impressions of moving pictures on the youth was considered most important, and several questions were asked to discover just what was the most important effect of the movies on our youth of today. Some of the questions were: "How often do the children attend the movies?" "How much do they see and retain?" "For how long do they remember what they see?" "What are the influences of movies on the emotions, health and conduct of children?" "How often do school children attend

A regional Parent-Teacher Congress banquet was held at the Governor Clinton Hotel last evening with an approximate attendance of 175 people. Mrs. Avery J. Pratt of Buffalo presided at the banquet and introduced the various speakers of the evening, interspersing her introductions with several stories and witty remarks. The featured address was delivered by Ralph G. Wales, executive secretary of the Protective Service Bureau of Buffalo, who spoke on the subject, "The Child, The Community, and Delinquency." Following this address, Mrs. Ralph E. Brodie, president of the New York State Congress of Parents and Teachers, gave a talk entitled "Looking Forward" in which she briefly outlined the possibilities that confronted the Parent-Teacher Association in child welfare work.

Official Greetings
The Hon. Conrad J. Heiselman, mayor of the city of Kingston, was present at the banquet and extended the welcome of the Colonial City to the delegates of the congress. The mayor pointed out that the assembled group faced the challenge of preventing crime in the ranks of youth and the best source of prevention could be found in the schools and the home—both agencies which directly interested the P.-T. A. Congress.

Following the mayor's address came greetings from J. C. Van Ingen, superintendent of the Kingston Public Schools system, who extended the best wishes of the Board of Education, the school principals and the teachers. Mr. Van Ingen commented on the lack of the male element in the audience but stated that some consolation might be found in the fact that the women were "the power behind the throne" and no doubt the men considered their wives could well cope with the child welfare situation with them, the men, furnishing the financial assistance.

A variety came in the program at this point when the Milton P.-T. A. Choral Club rendered three selections, the highlight in their part of the proceedings being the rendition of Beethoven's "The Heavens Are Declaring." Then came a period of the presentation of awards to the various societies and also the giving of a life membership in the Central Hudson area to Mrs. Harry E. McCormick of Cornwall in appreciation of her fine cooperation and work for the furtherance of Parent-Teacher work in this area.

Social Worker
The speaker of the evening, Mr. Wales, was then introduced. He began by pointing out that he had enjoyed social service work because he liked that sort of occupation and because he saw the great need for such activity, his preparation carrying him into New York City's courts and prisons where he obtained first hand information on the need for a better work in stamping out juvenile delinquency. After extensive investigation over a two-year period, he had reached the conclusion that there were three fundamentals in the course that would divert delinquency, namely, the child, the community, and delinquency itself.

Most young people are restless, turbulent and always striving to do something and because conditions are not what they should be, youth often goes astray. Sometimes the Secretary of Navy Issues Statement Regarding Status Following Expiration of Washington Naval Treaty Dec. 31.

"WE MUST WAIT"

United States Will Be Unable to Do Anything About it Until Congress Appropriates.

Washington, Oct. 7 (UP).—Warning indirectly against disturbance of the present status of fortifications in the Pacific after expiration of the Washington naval treaty, Secretary Swanson indicated today the United States was prepared to match the building activity of any other power in that area.

Swanson discussed at his press conference London's proposal that Japan, the United States and Great Britain agree to extend that portion of the treaty, which expires December 31, providing for no new construction of fortifications or naval bases in the Pacific.

"Fortifications," he said "are intended to answer fortifications. One menace must be met by another menace."

He declined to be more specific.

Both the secretary and Admiral William H. Standley, chief of naval operations, who sat at the cabinet member's side during the conference, emphasized that formulation of American policy toward fortification of its Pacific possessions must await expiration of the treaty unless some new understanding were reached meanwhile. They indicated, the United States would take no initiative in the matter.

"We Must Wait"
Swanson asserting "We must wait and see what happens," added that the United States, even if it decided to proceed with fortification work, could do nothing about it until Congress provided an appropriation.

In response to questions, he said the Navy Department had no information Japan already had begun to fortify certain of the islands apportioned to it in the Pacific under a League of Nations mandate.

Earlier, the state department disclosed it was studying a communication from Great Britain proposing continuation of the fortifications "status quo" in the Pacific. The communication was addressed to Japan as well as the United States.

Beyond this State Department officials refused to comment.

Article 19 of the Washington Naval limitations treaty embodies an agreement among the United States, Great Britain and Japan not to enlarge fortifications or create new naval bases in certain of their respective island possessions and territories in the Pacific.

The whole Washington naval accord will be terminated automatically on December 31.

Earlier official statements had indicated that the United States did not intend to take the initiative in any move toward extending "the status quo" provision regarding fortifications but that it would be receptive to any overtures from the other two powers for a discussion of the subject.

"AMERICAN DREFFS"
CARTER STILL STRUGGLING

Chicago, Oct. 7 (UP).—Thirty-seven years have passed since a court martial passed judgment on Captain Oberlin M. Carter, but still unshaken today was his determination to "vindicate" his name. Eighty years old now, Carter announced he was preparing a new bill of complaint in an effort to have the United States district court at Washington set aside his sentence of 1892.

Kaufman Hearing Adjourned

Injured When Truck Hits Tree
Leon Doors, 19, of 214 Smith street, Poughkeepsie, received cuts on the forehead and arm, when the truck in which he was riding, operated by his father, Joseph Doors, crashed into a tree at Poughkeepsie Tuesday afternoon. Young Doors was brought to the Kingston Hospital in the Gormley ambulance and his condition was reported as good this morning.

The elder Doors told Trooper Ray Dunn, who investigated the accident, that he was driving toward Warrville with a truck loaded with apples, when a truck coming from the opposite direction forced him off the road. His truck struck a slanting tree near the roadside, smashing the top and the right side and scattering the apples over the roadway. Young Doors was sitting on the side of the truck which came into contact with the tree.

Damage Claims Are Filed Against City, Ash Law Adopted

Several Cases for Damages Filed With Common Council Tuesday—Aldermen Adopt Ash and Rubbish Collection Ordinance Approved by Public Works Board—Other Matters.

Four claims for damages against the city were filed with the Common Council Tuesday evening, and were referred to the auditing committee and corporation counsel. The aldermen also unanimously adopted a new ash and rubbish collection ordinance that had been approved by the Board of Public Works at its last meeting, and which limited the weight of containers filled with ashes or rubbish to 100 pounds. Considerable other business was also transacted at the regular monthly meeting that evening, and the council approved a resolution that the next regular meeting be held on November 10, as the date of the regular meeting fell on Election Day.

The new ash and rubbish collection ordinance that was adopted by the council was the result of agitation of the matter by Alderman Lukaszewski who several months ago called attention to the fact that a number of householders and merchants were placing such large containers out on the sidewalks that the ashmen were unable to handle them owing to the weight and suggesting that a limit of weight be placed on all containers.

The new ordinance was accordingly drafted and first submitted to the Board of Public Works which approved it and forwarded it to the council for action. The ordinance became law for adoption last night and was unanimously approved.

Andrew Kovacs of 755 Kingston street filed a claim for $50 against the city for injuries which he claimed were sustained by his four-year-old son falling into an excavation in the street in front of the Kovacs home in September. The claim was referred to the auditing committee and corporation counsel.

Thomas J. Imperial of 435 Albany avenue filed a claim for $2,500 for injuries which he claimed his young son, Thomas, had sustained in using one of the slides or chutes at the Loughran Park playground in September. The claim was referred to the auditing committee and corporation counsel.

Similar action was taken on a claim for $5,000 filed by Clarence O. Fromer of 69 Albany avenue who alleged that the city had taken part of his land on Abel street and Hudson street when those streets were improved.

Mrs. Samuel Apps of 36 Rondout street filed a claim for $15.90 for alleged damages to her property by blasting last March.

The local ERB filed its financial report for September which showed that the bureau had expended the sum of $10,458.31, which included administrative expenses, in administering relief to 313 cases in the city.

The aldermen unanimously adopted a resolution addressed to the Navy Department requesting that one of the new destroyers be named Shufeldt in honor of the late Rear Admiral Robert W. Shufeldt of this city. The council last month had been requested by Mayor Heiselman to adopt such a resolution.

The following resolutions were introduced and referred to the various city boards and departments:

By Alderman Lukaszewski—that a light be placed on pole 565 on First avenue; that Moore street be widened and sanitary sewer be built, also a retaining wall be built on west side of Hooker street, and a fence be erected on Second avenue, between High street and Larch street, the work to be done by the WPA; that Highland avenue, the east side of East Chester street and Hasbrouck Place be topdressed.

Alderman Robertson—that Tubby street be rebuilt, graded and curbed from East Chester street to end, the work to be done by the WPA; that Snyder Place be swept and repaired as soon as possible.

Alderman Epstein—that Fire Board remodel Weber Hose House on Mill street; that Public Works Board cut down bank on upper Water street at the head of Newkirk avenue; that Board of Public Works repair the following streets: East Union street, Chambers street, East Pleasant street and Ann street.

Alderman Robertson—that in view of the fact that the East Chester street by-pass carries a heavy traffic, which is seemingly increasing, and because of the dangerous condition which existed because of the accumulation of snow and ice during the past winter, that the Public Works Board be directed to include in its snow and ice removal program for the coming winter the removal of snow and ice from East Chester street, from Broadway to the city line.

Aldermen Sanction Issue of $80,000 of Equalization Bonds

Mayor Heiselman Addresses Communication to Council Recalling Adoption of Debt Equalization Plan Last Year Which Required Bond Issue This Year.

The Common Council Tuesday evening authorized the issuance of $80,000 debt equalization bonds in order to carry out the debt equalization plan which was recommended to the council last year by Mayor C. J. Heiselman and adopted at that time.

Mayor Heiselman's communication to the council last evening, which outlined the plan briefly read as follows:

October 5, 1936
To the Honorable,
The Common Council,
Kingston, New York.
Gentlemen:

On July 2, 1935, I addressed a communication to your honorable body recommending the adoption of a debt equalization plan which would carry into effect a sound, intelligent and much needed plan of the municipal financial structure. Your honorable body approved the plan and it was approved by the State Comptroller on July 31, 1935. The plan was put into operation by the issuance of the 1935 Series of Debt Equalization Bonds in the amount of $115,000.00, which were sold by the city on October 1, 1935, at an interest rate of 2 1/2 per cent.

As you will recall, prior to the adoption of the debt equalization plan by your honorable body, 52 per cent of the entire debt of the city for general city purposes (exclusive of water bonds) would have become due in 1936, 1937 and 1938, because at the time of their issuance no plan for an equitable maturity had been considered. The adoption of the plan was made doubly necessary and desirable on account of the substantial amount of bonds which have been issued for relief purposes and which came due at a time when property owners, after years of unfavorable economic conditions, find it increasingly difficult to pay taxes. The adoption of the plan met universal local approval because it provided an alleviation of the tax load at a time when the home and property owners are least able to carry the burden.

Our debt equalization plan called for the issuance of debt equalization bonds during three years as follows:

1935 Series	$115,000.00
1936 Series	80,000.00
1937 Series	25,000.00

The first series were issued last year. It is now time to issue the 1936 series, amounting to $80,000.00. Next year we must issue the last of 1937 series, amounting to $25,000.00.

The following table shows the effect on our annual tax levy for debt service upon the full execution of the equalization plan, after providing for the payment of $300,000 relief bonds and $12,129.75 snow removal equipment notes issued in 1935. You will note that it would have been necessary to include $211,334.31 for debt service in next year's budget were it not for the debt equalization plan, which reduces this amount to $134,534.31, or a reduction of $76,800.

Year	Total Debt Service on Present Outstanding Obligations	Total Debt Service after Issuance of Debt Equalization Bonds
1937	$ 211,334.31	$ 134,534.31
1938	165,880.01	145,080.01
1939	142,730.70	147,930.70
1940	140,327.50	144,527.50
1941	126,822.50	141,022.50
1942	127,842.50	142,042.50
1943	132,422.50	137,622.50
1944	119,367.50	124,167.50
1945	56,942.50	120,742.50
1946	40,000.00	66,000.00

$1,287,160.02 $1,324,540.02
Last year the first step was taken in carrying out the city's debt equalization plan. I recommend that your honorable body now take the second step by authorizing the issuance of $80,000 in debt equalization bonds, $10,000 to become due in 1944 and $70,000 to become due in 1945, the proceeds thereof to be placed in a trust fund to be used only for the payment of bonds maturing in the year 1937.

Very truly yours,
C. J. HEISELMAN,
Mayor.

THANK YOU, Grace Moore

Miss Grace Moore, whose lovely voice and personal charm have endeared her to millions, recently said:

"It is only after a long sojourn in foreign countries that one can appreciate the music in the well-modulated voices of our American telephone operators. . . . We are apt to overlook the great contributions they make to the pleasantness of our everyday world, which, conversationally, is often telephonic."

Thank you, Miss Moore. It is no accident that telephone operators have "well modulated" voices, for we have a training school from which every girl must be graduated before she can handle your calls. There she acquires the "voice with a smile," and learns the importance of dealing with every call as a personal thing. "Number, please? . . . Thank you!" New York Telephone Company.

Approved Highland Sewer to Be Turned Over to Town Oct. 17

On October 17, Louis Petrosi & Sons, Inc., contractors, who constructed the Highland village sewer, will be released from their year's maintenance clause which was included in the contract of construction, and at that time the sewer system will be turned over to the Sewer District of Lloyd, of which the town board is the governing body. At present the contractor, who under the terms of his contract was compelled to maintain the sewer system for one year, has a gang of men making final repairs before turning the system over to the district.

For the past two months the town sewer inspector, Edward Ackley, has gone through every foot of the new system making an inspection to detect any defects which might exist before the contractor finally is released from responsibility.

Elmer Randall, who has represented the contractor on the job for the entire time of the construction as well as during the past year while the contractor has been required to maintain the system, stated to a Freeman reporter Tuesday that Mr. Ackley had covered every foot of the sewer system with a new type of sugar and that every defect was promptly brought to the attention of Mr. Randall and the contractor has made repairs. Mr. Ackley and K. U. Allen, representing the consulting engineer, have made a very close inspection of the system and after repairs are made Mr. Allen comes up from New York for final inspection of the repairs made. All defects and damages resulting from use have been brought to the attention of Mr. Randall and at present he has an average of five men at work making repairs.

Contractor Responsible
"Nothing is basically wrong with the system," said Mr. Randall. "All of the cost of repairs are being taken care of by the contractor. That the contractor would be responsible for such repairs was assured when the district retained 5 per cent of the contract price until such time as the system was in working order and accepted at the expiration of the one year period of maintenance. The only cost to the district involved in these repairs are the salary of Mr. Ackley, the inspector," said Mr. Randall.

"I expect to be through with the work by October 17, the scheduled time for turning over the system. At present we are employing an average of five men on the job to clean up the work. Every manhole on the job has been gone over and pointed up and made as good as humanly possible. We have even pointed up manholes which were not even complained of in order to assure the village a good job. By the 17th of this month, everything will be O. K. to be turned over to the district for acceptance and relief from future maintenance by the contractor," said Mr. Randall.

The brick work and masonry was done on the job by Louis Countryman and others who have worked on the job under the contractor are Oren Burgess, Dominick Girano and Anselon Brothers.

"I was one of a committee of three or four others from the Lions Club of Highland which was responsible for getting the sewer project started. We pledged money to pay for the plans and surveys for the preliminary work. The club also got the petition through about four years ago with the town board and I have since the commencement of the work been with the contractor," said Randall. "Having been with the contractor since the first day of work and having been familiar with the steps leading up to the commencement of the work, I feel that through the PWA funds and work and through the low bid of Mr. Petrosi that the town has received more than its money's worth on this job. There has been talk in the village that the pipe line is too small, but in my inspections of the system I see no evidence of this. There has been talk that the pipe line is or will be too small to carry the burden but although I am no engineer I believe from experience that the system is adequate. It is a well known engineering fact that Highland stands on a steep hill and that a pipe line laid down a steep grade has a far greater capacity than a pipe line on a less steep grade. I am sure the pipe capacity is ample," said Randall.

"The plans were drawn by Mr. Bowe who is a competent engineer who has spent all his life in this work. These plans were submitted to Albany for approval where they were gone over by the State Health Department and then were forwarded to the PWA officials in New York after Albany had approved. From the New York office the plans were sent to Washington after New York had approved and Washington also approved the plans, so I feel the people of the village are taking much on their shoulders when they attempt to match their opinions against the engineers who inspected the plans and gave approval. It is a good sewer and a good bargain. We might have spent more money and got a better sewer but I feel the system is ample," said the representative of the contractor.

Petrosi, who bid $24,000 below the bulk of the other contractors who submitted bids, it is claimed, did not break even on the job.

"Sighs" Favored Dessert at Spanish Celebrations

Spaniards are light eaters, a Spanish saying goes, because their favorite dessert is a "sigh." A "sigh" or "suspiro" in Spanish is not, however, the lament of a lover, but instead a little cake of spun sugar which is toasted in an oven and melts in the mouth the minute one bites into it.

"Suspiros," observes a writer in the Detroit News, are one of the favorite delicacies sold at "romerias," which are a combination of a saint's day, a community picnic and in some sections a cattle fair. The religious celebration in honor of the saint usually takes place early in the morning, other events in the afternoon. Many bring their lunches, but at an important "romeria" this is hardly necessary, for little booths and tents are pitched and in them one can buy nuts, cakes, candy, ice cream and of course "suspiros."

When there is a cattle fair in connection with a "romeria," the fair usually takes place in the morning, as that allows both the buyer and the seller the whole afternoon to celebrate their good bargains. If two men have difficulty in agreeing on a price for a certain thing, they call in a referee, who thinks the whole proposition over very carefully, and then usually decides that the two should "split the difference." This little service calls of course for a treat, and everything settled, the three men repair to one of the booths or tents for a celebration.

King's Jester Useful in Telling Truth to Ruler

Strange and degrading as it all now seems, it was thought neither strange nor degrading in feudal days that the average family jester should be a half-wit, writes Robert M. Hill in Blackwood's Magazine. But the cap with the asses' ears, marking that great fraternity of the motley which was so much a part of the life of the Middle Ages, covered some of the sharpest as well as some of the feeblest brains.

The baron of those days, engaging a family fool, did not seek for a master of repartee—what he desired was a person with plenty of animal good spirits who was at the same time so simple as to make the baron's own modest intellectual attainments seem impressive by comparison.

The best person to meet these requirements was the village idiot, who was accordingly transplanted to the castle. There he had privilege to wander where he chose, in the banqueting hall, the kitchen, even the ladies' private rooms. His jokes were coarse and rough, but though he was sometimes whipped, generally no restraint was put on his babblings.

The Mink Family

Minks are found in more or less abundance all over the United States, Canada and Alaska, as far north as trees will grow, says a writer in the St. Louis Globe-Democrat. When fully adult, they reach a length of about 18 inches for the head and body, plus approximately 8 inches more for the tail. The body of a fully developed mink will be almost as thick as the wrist of a man of average size. In general, the mink bears considerable resemblance to the weasel, having a long body, longish neck and broad, somewhat flattened head. Its legs are short and rather stout, and its feet have five toes each, the toes being armed with exceedingly sharp claws. In color, it is dark brown above, lighter on the belly, and with a nearly black tail. The chin is white.

Old Time Church Singers Fined When Out of Tune

When New England was first settled, there were no hymn books available to the church congregations, so each church had a precentor, whose duty it was to lead the singers by reading the Psalms, a line at a time, and setting the tunes.

The congregation knew at first about 20 Psalm tunes. As people did not have hymn books in which the tunes were written down beside the words which properly went with them, the precentors were sometimes unable to prevent the congregations from shifting from one tune to another. When the loud-voiced individuals who started the crowd off on a wrong tune were identified, they were fined. The court records of Massachusetts refer to many instances of this sort. One report from Worcester reads as follows: "Deacon Hart, the Chorister, one Sabbath day in setting the Psalms, attempted to sing the Bella tune. Your memorialist, being used to the old way, did not know the Bella tune from the Pax tune and supposed that the deacon had aimed at the Cambridge short tune and had set it wrong. Thereupon, this petitioner raised his voice in the Cambridge short tune and the people followed him except a few who sang the Bella tune. So, there was an unhappy discord and the blame was all imputed to your poor petitioner and John Hoole, Esq., assistant, sent for him and fined him."—Washington Star.

Radio traces its descent directly to the theoretical work of James Clerk Maxwell, who in 1863, as a result of his profound researches in mathematical physics, made the declaration that visible light consists of electric waves in the ether and that electro-magnetic waves of other wave lengths are also light also extended. In 1887 Heinrich Hertz of Germany gave an experimental proof of the existence of these electrical waves.

Clipper Is Fueled For Manila Flight

By CHARLES E. HARNER
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Alameda, Calif., Oct. 7 (AP).—The sleek China Clipper was fueled today for the 27th Manila airmail departure with five newspapermen as passengers over the 8,200-mile air route.

The five-day flight was scheduled to start at 3 p. m. (6 p. m. eastern standard time) with Honolulu, 2,400 miles distant, destination of the first leg in an overnight voyage.

For this writer, it will be the adventure of flying farther over water than ever has been flown by a passenger.

Officials of Pan American Airways, which has operated the airmail service since November 22, 1935, viewed the flight as merely another departure for one of their three huge seaplanes which have completed more than 500,000 miles of flying over the route.

Captain Ralph A. Dahlstrom, veteran of Caribbean skyways before his transfer to the California-Manila route, was in command of the four-motored, 26-ton China Clipper. Other newspaper men making the flight were L. D. Lyman of the New York Times; C. B. Allen of the New York Herald-Tribune; Harry Franz of the United Press, and W. W. Chaplin of Universal Service.

The liver should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas builds up your stomach. You get constipated. Your whole system is poisoned and you feel sour, sick and the world looks punk.
Laxatives are only make-shifts. A more bowel movement doesn't get at the cause. It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get those two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." Harmless, gentle, yet amazing in making bile flow freely. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name. Stubbornly refuse anything else, etc.

Union Party Enters New York Politics With Full Ticket

Albany, N. Y., Oct. 7 (AP).—The Union party entered the campaign in President Roosevelt's home state today with presidential electors and a complete statewide ticket to contend with candidates of Democratic, Republican and minor parties.

Just before midnight last night, deadline under the election law for offering independent nominations for places on the New York state ballot in the general election November 3, supporters of the Rev. Charles E. Coughlin's National Union for Social Justice filed petitions designating electors for Representative William Lemke and Thomas C. O'Brien, Union party candidates for President and Vice President.

The New York Union party, which claimed 32,829 signatures, also nominated the following statewide ticket:

For governor, Emmet J. Larkin, Buffalo; lieutenant governor, Julian V. Carabba, Brooklyn; comptroller, Copley Clarke, New York city; attorney general, Sidney Kansas, New York city; associate judge, Court of Appeals, Andrew Byrne, New York city; representatives at large, Edward T. Curran, New York city, and Kathleen McCarthy, Buffalo.

The Elections Bureau said that if all the petitions are accepted, there would be seven columns for statewide parties on the November 3 ballot. In addition to the Democratic and Republican tickets, the Socialist and Communist were assured of ballot places by their showing in the last statewide election.

Night School
Classes in night school at Kingston High School started Tuesday evening with a registration of 122. Principal Frank L. Meagher reported to day. In order to complete the organization of the school, all those intending to study are requested to register as soon as possible. Registration nights are Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday from 7:15 to 9:15. Classes are open in cooking, public speaking, shop, technical mechanics and elementary subjects. As tonight is one for registration, a large number is expected to enroll.

REGISTER FRIDAY

The country is facing one of the greatest crises in its history and the question of whether we are to continue the mad orgy of spending and the combination of Communistic and Socialistic government for another four years is to be decided at the polls by the voters of the country in November. Never before in the history of the United States have such important questions arisen and it is the duty of every American citizen, whether man or woman, to cast a vote on Election Day.

But, if you are not registered you cannot vote. Friday is the first day of registration of voters in Kingston, and the polls will open in the various polling places in the city that morning at 10 o'clock and remain open until 10 o'clock at night. Every man and woman eligible to vote this year should register on Friday. Of course, there will be three other days in which to register, but many things can happen to keep you away from the polls.

It is the duty of every one qualified to exercise his right of franchise this year. The most important privilege an American citizen has is that of voting for the candidate of his choice. This privilege should be exercised.

In past years Ulster county has always rolled up comfortable majorities for the candidates on the Republican ticket. This year that majority should be greatly increased.

Philip Eiting, Republican county chairman, has mailed out a communication to every enrolled Republican voter in Ulster county urging him or her to get out and register this year. There are many voters each year who register but fail to enroll in the party of their choice. Everyone who believes in the principles of the Republican party should not only get out and register on Friday but should also enroll under the Republican banner.

Don't forget to register and enroll this Friday or Saturday.

HOME FOR THE AGED

The annual donation day for the Home for the Aged on Washington avenue will be held tomorrow. Supporters of this institution who have been generous in the past are requested to continue their contributions that this home for elderly people may endure. A cordial invitation is extended to all those who are interested in this home to call on Thursday and learn of its operation.

The board of managers announces that in some quarters this home is erroneously considered as "Old Ladies' Home," because for a long time such an institution was maintained in this city. This is a mistake for both men and women are enjoying this comfortable and pleasant home. At present there are 36 elderly women and two couples living there. This number together with the manager and staff of helpers make up the big family.

In order to properly care for this large family continued support of the institution must be had from public-spirited citizens. So donation day is held when gifts of food supplies and money are received. It is felt that if all those who can afford it will send in a little gift, life at the Home for the Aged will be greatly enriched.

There is another need, especially for those who cannot get out except with great difficulty or not at all, and that is occasional entertainment. Groups in a position to give an afternoon's or evening's entertainment suitable to the old folks will be doing a most kindly and thoughtful act in contributing their services.

NO NEW DEAL SECURITY

Governor Landon in Milwaukee tore the camouflage from the New Deal's fake "social security" act and revealed it as a delusion and a snare, as well as the largest tax bill ever imposed on the people. He disclosed that instead of a beneficent act of a generous government, it would impose the whole costs of the plan on workers' weekly payrolls; that it would force every state to adopt unemployment insurance, without giving any help therein, whether the state desired it or not; and that it would build up a huge army of tax-eaters at Washington—to keep track of 26,000,000 workers' jobs, wages, and mode of life, thus requiring more government snooping and investigating than ever before known in our land.

The Governor, exposing the fallacies of this legislation, which goes into effect next January, likened the New Deal government to the profiteering head of a family. To quote his own language: "The father of the family is a kindly man, so kindly that he borrows all he can to add to the family's pleasure. At the same time he impresses upon his sons and daughters the necessity of saving for their old age. Every month they bring 6 per cent of their wages to him so that he may act as trustee and invest their savings for their old age."

"The father decides that the best investment is his own I. O. U. So every month he puts aside in a box his I. O. U. carefully executed, and, moreover, bearing interest at 3 per cent. And every month he spends the money that his children bring him, partly in meeting his regular expenses, and the rest in various experiments that fascinate him. Years pass—the children grow old—the day comes when they have to open their father's box. What do they find? Roll after roll of neatly executed I. O. U.'s."

NON-PARTISAN VETERANS

Harry W. Colmery of Topeka, new head of the American Legion, makes a good impression by his first utterances. And by the way, he seems to be a man not particularly given to utterances. The American Legion under his administration, he says, will confine itself to matters that definitely concern the Legion. When asked to express himself on political matters, he has nothing at all to say, except that "partisan politics have no place in the Legion."

This, as most citizens will doubtless agree, is a good platform for veterans to stand on. And the veterans themselves at present seem pretty well agreed about it. Here is a fine example, in a world so largely dominated today by military groups.

RUSSIAN GIANT

Soviet Russia is going to count its population and intends to get the big job finished in one day, January 6, 1937. Already 120,000 instructors are training registrars for the task. Doubtless everyone not engaged in the census-taking will be requested to stay at home that day until the enumerator has paid his visit. It is estimated that the total will be close to 175,000,000.

Whatever the exact count, there are a lot of people in Russia. With their developing industries and rapidly spreading literacy, they are indeed a world force and will become increasingly powerful as time passes. It would be just as well for their neighbors to figure out ways to get along with them.

The Wrong Murderer
By NUCH CLEVELY

SYNOPSIS: In the determined effort to bring Ambrose Leaven and his gang of kidnapers and dope runners to justice, Terence Mahony has worked desperately into one of Lacey's traps. He has gone to a quiet house in a well-known neighborhood and is waiting for a mysterious Mr. Brown when suddenly a very angry Irishman breaks into the place, the accused murderer of being Brown, and threatens to take fifty quid out of his hide.

Chapter 21
DEATH STRUGGLE

WITH that it seemed the man's patience came to an end. His large fists clenched; he took half a pace forward; and at that Mahony's pistol came out of his pocket and he pointed it at the man's stomach.

"Better not," he said curtly. At the sight of the pistol pointed at him the Irishman paused. But only for a moment.

"So that's the game—twist me out of me money and threaten me with a gun!" he exclaimed in a tone of outraged astonishment. "Shoot, then, me foin gentleman, if you're the pluck, and if you kill me, may you swing for it."

At that, with an agility astonishing in a man of his bulk, he darted suddenly sideways, in order to confuse Mahony's aim, and then sprang, his huge hands outstretched towards Mahony's throat.

Mahony did not fire. The last thing he wanted was the noise of a shot, which would attract the attention of the whole neighborhood, including the police, to the house. He ducked quickly under those outstretched hands, stepped nimbly to one side, and slipped the pistol back into his pocket. Then, as his opponent turned for another spring, Mahony stepped in and brought his right over in a crisp, hard punch to the man's face.

The man's head went back; before he could recover himself Mahony had hit him again with the left in the stomach and the right in the jaw, both good solid hefty punches that might easily have knocked an ordinary man out.

The big Irishman took them without flinching; then he gathered himself together and sprang again.

Once more Mahony slipped lightly to one side; again his fist thudded into his opponent's face. The big man's right cheek was cut; one of his eyes was fast closing; his lower lip was considerably swollen. It seemed that he had learnt his lesson; he no longer indulged in those mad rushes.

Intuitively he crouched in a crouching attitude and began to advance quite slowly across the room towards Mahony, watching him like a cat the while. His intention was evident; he meant to crowd Mahony in to a corner where he could pin him and get a grip on him.

But Mahony was not having any. He realized very well that once he came to grips with his herculean opponent he would stand little chance.

Smack, smack, his fists landed in rapid succession in the man's face, and he slipped away out of range. But the Irishman, it seemed, also knew something of boxing; though he could not avoid the blows altogether, he managed to turn his head slightly, so that none of them reached a vital spot.

Slowly, remorselessly, he shuffled after Mahony, taking all the punishment that Mahony dealt out to him, waiting his chance to come to close quarters and get a grip on Mahony with those huge hands.

His chance came as Mahony, stepping back quickly out of range, caught his heel to the edge of a rug. For a moment Mahony staggered, off his balance, and in that moment the Irishman leaped.

Mahony twisted desperately, trying to get out of range; he almost succeeded, but not quite. The Irishman's left hand got a good grip on Mahony's coat; with a sudden jerk he drew Mahony near to him; and his right hand, like a snake striking, closed round Mahony's throat.

"Now, me foin gentleman, we can continue the argument more comfortably," said the Irishman in a triumphant tone.

For a moment, in that tremendous grip, Mahony felt utterly helpless. He struggled, hitting out with both fists at his opponent's body, but it was like battering at a brick wall. The Irishman was smiling; his eyes were blazing with a light of victorious exultation. Mahony's struggles grew weaker.

And then the rug which had been his undoing proved his salvation. As the two men struggled, the loose rug, which had become thoroughly raked up, became entangled between their feet. Still holding Mahony, the big Irishman tripped; the two men together staggered into a small chair, knocked it over, and came crashing to the ground.

As he fell, the Irishman had instinctively released his grip and lunged out one arm to try to retain his balance. Mahony gave a desperate wriggle and got clear.

The two men rose to their feet almost simultaneously. Mahony's back was against a corner of the wall; his breath was coming painfully in sobbing gasps; and the Irishman barred his exit from the corner. In another moment that terrible grip would close on Mahony's throat again. Mahony had neither the energy nor the breath remaining to dodge. There was only one thing to do, and he did it. As the Irishman sprang in again to the attack, he marshalled all his strength in one supreme effort and sprang to meet him.

And this time, either from sheer carelessness, or because he thought that his opponent was exhausted, the Irishman left a vital spot unprotected. Mahony's fist, with all the skill and timing learned during many hours of boxing, and with every bit of bone and muscle in his body, and all the strength of desperation behind the blow, crashed fairly on to the angle of the big man's jaw. The Irishman, coming forward at full speed, was knocked clean over in his tracks, landing on the flat of his back with a crash that seemed to shake the building. Mahony, panting and exhausted, leaned back against the wall. His right hand felt as though every bone in it was broken. The Irishman lay still.

TREATMENT OF ASTHMA

I have written before about the great benefit derived by some asthmatic patients by the use of breathing exercises. The value of these exercises has been demonstrated by the Asthma Research Council, Great Britain, and the reports published in their booklet "Breathing Exercises in the Treatment of Asthma," published at the price of Fifty Cents a copy, obtainable from Guy's Hospital, The Strand, London, England.

During an attack of asthma the little air sacs in the chest, which are like so many little bags, are narrowed by spasm or congestion, with the result that the air can't get out of the lungs very readily. Naturally the asthmatic has difficulty in breathing out. He can breathe air in all right which of course makes matters worse as it only over-extends these little air sacs.

The idea of the breathing exercises is to try to push this confined air completely out of the lungs by teaching the asthmatic to use his diaphragm by use of the abdominal muscles.

Drs. J. L. Livingstone and M. Gillespie in the British Lancet speak of the work done on exercises in asthma at Guy's Hospital, London, for Sick Children, Great Ormond Street and King's College Hospital.

"The patients are taught to take in a short breath through the nose and then breathe out forcibly through the mouth with a whistling or hissing noise; this makes the patient conscious of the breathing out part of the exercise which is the important part. During the breathing out the abdomen must sink or go down which shows that the diaphragm (floor of the chest) has risen inside and driven out the air."

These breathing exercises must be done for at least 10 minutes, two or three times a day. The patient is warned not to be discouraged because the exercise often brings on coughing when first tried. But as this coughing loosens the mucous which is soon coughed up, the patient gets relief.

In 75 cases of asthma treated for one year with this forced breathing out exercise, good results were obtained in 52, improvement in 12, and no improvement in 11 cases."

"The treatment requires perseverance and effort on the part of both patient and teacher for a considerable time. A number of patients were able to prevent impending attacks by these exercises; this appeared to be due to loosening and getting rid of the mucous, rather than to any other factor."

Notwithstanding the excellent results obtained by the breathing exercises, these physicians advise that other necessary treatment—using certain drugs, avoiding certain foods and other substances—should be continued.

TAMMANY WAS A PIKER

TALKS TO PARENTS

Discussing Symptoms

By BROOKE FITZGERALD

"Yes, I took Mary to the doctor yesterday, I don't like her color, and she is nervous and jumps as a cat. The doctor says she needs careful watching, and wants us to send her to the hospital for observation. But I can't bear to let her go. She is such a mother's baby. And she is really very good about noticing anything wrong. If she feels sick or tired she tells me, and I report to the doctor."

Mary, standing beside her mother as she went over the case, took it all in. Of course she was interested in her symptoms—no one more so. Grown-ups and children alike enjoy being the objects of solicited attention. If Mary had had no symptoms she would probably have invented some, in order to hold the center of the stage. It would have been far better for her to go to the hospital even if it made both her mother and herself unhappy, than to become the focus of interest at home.

The less a child knows about his symptoms the better, no matter how sick he is, his mother and father, his temperature and pulse, his reflexes and reactions should not be discussed in his presence; and least of all should he be made aware of his psychological peculiarities.

The less conscious of his health, both physical and mental, a child is, the easier will it be to make and keep him well. It is very easy to become a chronic ail, always finding or inventing some disability. A child who prides himself on being well is very apt to keep well. He will ignore the minor aches and pains which come to everyone and mean nothing. It is very easy to see when a child is really ill, but even then it would be a good plan for the parents to display as little concern as possible.

UPTON CLOSE WILL

SPEAK HERE TONIGHT

Upton Close will speak at the Kingston High School Auditorium tonight under the auspices of the Kingston Schoolwomen's Club.

Traveling some half a million miles on three continents, his contacts range from congressmen to mahatmas. He has been a salesman, poet, journalist, preacher, teacher, secret agent, farmer, author, lecturer, etc. For 15 years he has been one of the foremost American interpreters of Pacific Asian affairs and author of six books on China and Japan.

The lecture tonight is one of a course of five to be given here under the Schoolwomen's Club.

A Washington Daybook

By FLESTON GROVER

WASHINGTON — Governor Landon and Secretary Morgenthau took the lead in posing real "brain stretchers" before voters when they thrust the international monetary agreement and the reciprocal trade treaties into a front row campaign position.

Political analysts call them the real facts of life in international affairs. Voters who thought to get by in this campaign merely by deciding whether communism is good or bad or whether relief is good or bad, from now on are likely to take plenty of statistics on the chin—and like it.

Landon Brags Got Of Figures

WHEN Landon decided to administer the official Republican drubbing to the reciprocal trade treaties undoubtedly he knew he would shake out answering figures in arm-length columns. He did. Secretary of Agriculture Wallace got after him on the price of chicken cheese, a weighty campaign subject if ever there was one. The commerce department is arming the state department with hundreds of figures to show how foreign trade has increased in the past three years.

Landon must have been startled by the announcement of Democratic intransigence of what's what on the treaty front.

Ernest G. Draper, assistant secretary of commerce, said a business

Christopher Asks Questions

By MARY GRAHAM BONNER

"WHAT do you mean by doubling 'My rooster word?' asked Top Notch.

"I'm not doubting your word," replied Christopher Columbus Crow.

"Oh yes, you are, cackle, cackle, retorted Top Notch.

"Don't get excited, Rooster," cawed Christopher. "Let's go into this matter very seriously. I'm ready to aid you. I'm willing to help you and let you share in any great discovery that I may make."

"You're willing to let me share with you when I was the discoverer," shouted Top Notch.

"Well, you only know that you saw horns. I may discover their owner."

"I'll give you full credit for what you've done. Don't you want to work with me on this?"

"Yes, I do," agreed Top Notch slowly. "But now that I've discovered the horns the next step is for you to discover the owner of them."

"You're not afraid to go back there, are you?" asked Christopher with a sly look in his eyes.

"Oh no," said Top Notch, hoping Christopher wouldn't ask him to return to the house with him.

"No, you're not very much afraid," laughed Christopher. "I'm sure, as a matter of fact you're hardly afraid at all any more, nor are you nervous."

"So you had better really come back and show me which window you mean."

"There's no point in my doing that," said Top Notch weakly, and beginning to tremble again. "It, or they, may be back of another window by this time. You know the house, and I'm feeling rather tired."

"Caw, caw, all right," agreed Christopher. "But I see through your fears just the same."

John O'Grat's House

John O'Grat's House is a spot on the north coast of Caithness, Scotland, 14 miles north of Wick and 1 3/4 miles west of Duncairn Head. It is the mythical site of an octagonal house said to have been erected early in the sixteenth century by John Groat, a Dutchman, who had migrated to the north of Scotland by permission of James IV. The site of the traditional building is marked by a mound and flagstaff.

Democracy 'Amore' Made

CHIEF the scene to Idaho. Out there Senator Borah argues against the treaty, says he has the American market for the American farmer. What is the Democratic answer out there, out in that hungry Idaho producing highly world-competitive wool, lumber and sugar?

Democratic Senator Pope of Idaho says he has "assurances" from President Roosevelt that no further reciprocal trade agreements now are under consideration.

"This," says Pope, "represents a criticism of the national administration who are saying the President intends further to reduce tariff protection of agricultural commodities."

Secretary Morgenthau avoided mentioning "subsidization" in announcing the three-part monetary agreement. But other government departments speak privately of the "subsidization agreement"—if that means anything.

As men pass beyond middle life they find it easier to bow to the inevitable without back strain.

A young mother had just unburdened herself and had told her son some facts of life. At the end she said:

Mother—If you want to know anything more, ask me now. The boy seemed deep in thought for awhile and she trembled from fear of his question. Finally he said: Son—Yes, Mother, there is something I'd like to ask you that has bothered me for a long time. How do they manage to get the Saturday Evening Post out on Tuesday?

Freddy—So you asked Geraldine to marry you?

Jacob—Yes, but I didn't have any luck. She asked me if I had any prospects.

Freddy—Why didn't you tell her about your rich uncle?

Jacob—I did. Geraldine is my aunt now.

The Way of a Woman She had it charged, for she had spent.

Much more than was her first intent. Her pocketbook grew limp and light. Her dimes and nickels all took flight. The little while she shopping went. She worshipped bargains, quite content. They took the place of sacrament. Though day had faded into night, Her face grown haggard, wan, and white.

Yet still her voice was eloquent—

"Please have it charged!"

A stunning young girl and a considerably less than stunning escort, climbed on two stools at an uptown drugstore fountain one day recently.

Young Man—An aspirin and water, please.

It was served and the escort pushed the glass and the tablet of aspirin over to the girl.

Clerk (to the young man)—One for you, too?

Young Man—No. I'm her headache. She does not affect me the same way.

Customer (who has been given very under-done steak)—I said "Well done," waiter.

Waiter—Oh, thank you, sir! It's not many people who give us praise.

You can't expect to fly with the owls at night and keep pace with the eagles during the day, or, as Ring Lardner once put it: "You can't rise with the lark if you've been on one the night before."

Mother—Junior, I thought you weren't going to play with the little boy next door any more.

Junior—I didn't intend to, but today is his birthday and his daddy gave him a quarter to spend.

Little Junior had been reprimanded and otherwise punished for his misbehavior. Not knowing this, his father began taking him to task alone. Little Junior looked appealingly into his father's face and said solemnly: "Daddy, Mother has 'tended to me!'"

Meaning of Word "Mesa"

The word "mesa" is a Spanish word meaning table. It describes high, broad and flat topped table land with steep sides, characteristic of the southwest. One of the most noted is Mesa Verde, in southwest Colorado, fifteen miles long, eight miles wide with cliff-like sides 400 to 800 feet high. The word is Spanish for green, therefore green table (land).

CHECK YOUR TOPCOAT

Except for those fortunates who are able to wear a topcoat all winter, because of favorable climatic conditions, topcoat weather runs from the first cool mornings and evenings that herald the coming of fall to those early winter days that provide momentary respite from the worst that's yet to come. Taking their fashion cue from suit models, topcoats swing to the more formal side. The fly front lapel model pictured above is in a deep brown diagonal. It features a perceptible waistline without exaggeration. Topcoats, by the way, are on the shorter side coming just to the knees or a fraction below.

Left: The double-breasted topcoat shown here is made of black and white herringbone shetland. Ideally suited for business wear. It carries out the important trend to formal effects.

Right: For those who need a topcoat for driving, or for commuter or country wear, this peak lapel fly front coat in Glen plaid is perfectly adapted.

Left: Though topcoats may be waterproofed by the cravenette process, a raincoat is an essential for heavy rains. This one is the traditional mackintosh model with military collar, fly front and easy shedding raglan sleeves.

Right: The belted raincoat in double-breasted model gives a touch of the military with an assurance of full protection in its convertible collar and storm tab sleeves.

COUNTY Christian Endeavor NEWS

GREETINGS

New Paltz, N. Y.
October 7, 1936.

Fellow Endeavorers.

There is a good deal to be done in Christian Endeavor this year. The theme, "Our Task—To Build a Christian World", offers a definite challenge to each one of us, and can we not think seriously of all that it implies in our lives today? During the past year we have accomplished some of the tasks we set out to do. In the coming year with the aid of every Endeavorer, young and old, I hope that we may accomplish many more things. Consecrated effort, loyal service and faith in our fellowmen—these are the goals in which we must strive to attain perfection if our organization is to grow and prosper.

Sincerely,
MISS MARY LANGWICK,
President, County Union.

County Union Met

The Ulster County Christian Endeavor Union held their first meeting of the coming season on September 21 at Shady with an attendance of 17 members. After enjoying a hot-dog roast and devotional period led by the Rev. Myrskens, the business session was begun. The resignation of Miss Helen Long as corresponding secretary was received and accepted and the appointment of Donald H. Smith to that position was approved. Some discussion concerning an attempt to make Kingston the place for the 1938 New York state convention was held and it was decided to look further into the matter, conferring with the proper city officials as to the necessary steps to be taken in such a project. A report concerning the fall convention and the leaders' conference will be found elsewhere in this column. The meeting was adjourned following the designation of the next officers' meeting as November 2 at the home of Miss Mary Langwick at New Paltz.

Leaders' Conference

The Eastern District Leaders' Conference will be held on October 10 and 11 in the First Baptist Church of Hudson. With the theme of "Our Task—To Build a Christian World," the conference will get under way at 10 o'clock in the morning with the registration and reception of delegates and the survey of literature. Discussion and forum groups will occupy the greater part of the day and the evening will be given over to the conference fellowship banquet which will be addressed by some prominent speaker. The Sunday program will include early morning service, more discussion groups and a vesper service. Registrations for this week-end should be sent to the general secretary, 310 Prudential Bldg., Buffalo.

will include early morning service, more discussion groups and a vesper service. Registrations for this week-end should be sent to the general secretary, 310 Prudential Bldg., Buffalo.

Fall Convention November 14

Milton P. Townsend, chairman of the convention committee, has announced that the Rev. Earle W. Gates, new secretary of the New York State Union, will deliver the main address at the fall convention of the Ulster County Christian Endeavor Union that will be held at Clintondale on November 14. At the Union meeting, a tentative program was submitted for the inspection of the officers, and a communication from the president of the Clintondale society was heard, offering a new shield to the county union to be used as an award for the society that will present the most members at the convention. Committees for the convention will be announced later.

Ponckhocke Congregational

The Congregational Society held its first meeting of the season on Thursday evening, September 24, electing the following officers to serve for the ensuing year: President, Beverly Williams; vice president, Ruth Carle; secretary, Ruth Parslow; treasurer, Edward Bilyou, social director, Frank Parslow. Plans were made for a Halloween social to be held Friday evening, October 30, in the Sunday school hall. The approaching county convention was discussed and plans are in progress to send a large delegation to Clintondale with the idea in mind of retaining the cup which the Ponckhocke group won last year at Woodstock. The following members have registered for the Leaders' Conference at Hudson: Beverly Williams, Ruth Carle and Nelson Lewis.

Summer Activity at Zena

The summer season that causes many of the societies to cease activities had no such effect on the Zena Endeavorers. This group transferred their meetings to the stone steps in front of their church as soon as the weather would permit, and held interesting meetings the entire summer. One meeting, led by Edna Holmster, featured a song service in which the leader gave a bit of history of each author before the singing of each hymn. A picnic at Mt. Tremper which included a hot-dog roast was also a part of the season. A check on the attendance record of the past year reveals that the average attendance was better than that of previous years. The shield which the Zenaites won at the Woodstock convention last fall has been properly engraved and now hangs on the wall of their meeting room. The correspondent writes that the month of October will feature drastic changes in the type of meetings now held and that several speakers will be included in future programs.

Record In First Meeting

The Comforter Endeavorers set some sort of a record in their initial meeting of the season held last Sunday evening, when 18 members reported for the opening session. This is the best attendance for the first meeting of the season that this group has registered in some time. Henry P. Elmhurst presented a talk on "Marching Orders," outlining a plan of activity for the group for the coming months, and then followed a discussion on World Brotherhood as a means of youth building a better world. The annual election of officers will be held at a business session on Friday evening, October 9, in the regular meeting rooms of the church, beginning at 7:30.

Albany Avenue Opens

The Albany Avenue Baptist Society began their season last Sunday with a meeting under the direction of Edward Safford. A general get-together social will be held Wednesday, October 7, with the idea in mind of laying plans for a busy season, and also to consider an invitation to visit the Ellenville Young People's organization for a social evening at some later date.

All news items for this column should be sent to Henry P. Elmhurst, Kingston Daily Freeman, Kingston, and should be received not later than Tuesday morning preceding date of publication.

WEST HURLEY.

West Hurley, Oct. 7.—Scott Haynes, who is in the Kingston Hospital, is improving slowly.

Paul Rowe went on the excursion trip to New York city on Tuesday.

Claudia Williams, Robert Nussbaum and Paul Rowe were callers at the M. E. parsonage at Ashokan, Sunday evening.

Arlene Longendyke spent the week-end in Kingston with relatives. The Epworth League held an interesting meeting on Friday evening. The subject discussed was "Capital Punishment." The pastor, the Rev. J. B. Glenwood, gave a talk on the subject and led the discussion after the meeting. Officers were elected for the coming year as follows: Paul Rowe, president; Claudia Williams, first vice-president; George Berry, second vice-president; June Stotenberg, third vice-president; William Sawyer, fourth vice-president; Robert Nussbaum, secretary; Kenneth Vradenburg, treasurer; Edna Wolven, organist. After the election of officers a social hour followed. Games were played and refreshments, consisting of sandwiches, pickles, cake and cocoa were served.

The meeting of the Ladies' Auxiliary, which was to have been held Thursday, October 8, has been postponed until Thursday, October 15.

A service of prayer and praise will be held Thursday evening at 7:30 p. m. "Why do you pray," will be the subject of discussion.

On Friday evening the Catskill Mountain Young People's League, which takes in some fifteen churches in this section, will meet in the M. E. Church. Dr. A. G. Carroll of St. James Church, Kingston, will be the speaker. You are cordially invited to attend. All Epworth League members are especially invited as some matters of interest to every Epworth League member will be discussed.

Mrs. Elizabeth Bailey, her two sons, Ralph and Robert, also two grandchildren, Lucile and Robert Bailey, all of New York, called at the parsonage at Ashokan on Sunday afternoon and remained for the evening service in the M. E. Church. Miss Fannie E. Clark of Hurleyville spending a few days with the pastor's family at Ashokan.

Mrs. John Saxe entertained the Garden Club at her home on Friday of last week.

Rally Day will be observed Sunday, October 11. This service will be at the hour of the regular church service. A special program has been prepared, including a pageant by three boys. This will be a service intended to increase interest in all the departments of the church.

Football players, who once risked bodily injury in their unique profession, now are welcomed by the county and given the best seats in the stands, says Sig Harris, veteran University of Minnesota scout.

Classis of Ulster October Session Held at Accord

The Classis of Ulster convened yesterday in the Rochester Reformed Church, Accord, for its stated October session. Twenty churches were represented. The Rev. John F. Heidenreich, president, was detained at home because of illness; and the Rev. Charles L. Palmer, vice president, had charge of the meeting. The Classis was honored by the presence of the Revs. J. S. Kittell, D. D., J. Harvey Murphy, D. D., and Donald Boice. The devotional service was participated in by the presiding officer, the Rev. Cornelius P. Muyskens, of the Gardiner church, who read the Scripture, and the Rev. Irving H. Decker, of Katsbaan, who made the prayer. The speaker at the inspirational period was Dr. Murphy, who gave a heart-searching address on the ideals of the "Greater Things" campaign, now in its beginning in the Reformed Church in America. Dr. James S. Kittell, secretary of the denominational Domestic Mission Board, addressed the Classis in the morning meeting on the situation in the church in general, but stressed more particularly the need of a spiritual awakening everywhere. Both addresses were most inspiring.

The Classis learned with regret of the request of the Rev. Wilbur F. Stowe and his consistory for the dissolution of the pastoral relationship. The request was granted, to become effective with the end of October. The Rev. John B. Steketee was designated as the constitutional superior of the proceedings of the Church of the Comforter during the period of its pastorallessness. The Classis voted to approve of the amendment proposed by General Synod in regard to the re-instatement of any minister or other officer who had been deposed. Classis, also, agreed to the deletion of certain words from its historic Belgic Confession. The report of the committee on revision of assessments was adopted. This report recommended a per capita assessment. The men of the Classis are to hold their annual dinner on Friday, December 4, in the Port Ewen Reformed Church, and the Rev. Dr. John E. Kuizenga, of Princeton, N. J., is to be the speaker. Three applications for aid were presented and approved.

Announcement was made of the transfer of Candidates Edgar T. DeGraff and Lloyd W. W. Bell to the respective bodies of the Presbytery of Albany and the Classis of Westchester, within whose bounds they had received calls to pastorates. Reports were heard from a number of agents and committees on various interests connected with the boards and funds of the church. The gist thereof was "Progress." Trustee Stowe was re-elected for the term of three years.

The actions of Classis in two special sessions were approved at this session. During the interval between April and October sessions two new ministers were received, ordained

Truck and Car In Collision

A truck driven by Harry Garrison of Saugerties collided with a car driven by John J. Secor of Ashokan, near the Rustic Tavern, between Phoenixia and Mt. Tremper, Tuesday evening. Secor, who was accompanied by his wife, complained of an injury to his back, following the accident and was taken to the office of Dr. Hans J. Cohn at Shokan for treatment.

Lehman Begins Campaign Swing

New York, Oct. 7 (AP).—Gov. Herbert H. Lehman, having accepted the Democratic nomination for re-election by upholding his record, turned his attention today to a campaign swing through upper New York state. Lehman differed sharply in his acceptance speech at the party's notification ceremonies last night with the position of his Republican opponent,

William F. Bleakley, that the governor should recommend legislation, should not fight for its passage. "I shall continue in the future, as I have in the past, to appeal directly to the people," Lehman said, "when ever I feel that their interests are in jeopardy. I would be betraying the people if I did not do so."

Lehman referred to a statement by Bleakley soon after nomination that he (Bleakley) did not intend to appeal to the people to have a measure enacted which was opposed by legislators.

The governor said his opponent had taken "a most amazing position—one which, if accepted, would unquestionably retard progressive legislation in this state for many years."

Y. M. C. A. AUXILIARY TO MEET MONDAY

The Woman's Auxiliary of the Young Men's Christian Association will hold its regular October meeting at the "Y" on Friday, October 9, at 3 p. m. Mrs. Marie Pluch will lead the devotions, and Mr. Sisson, new "Y" secretary, will address the meeting on the work of the association as planned for the coming year. A social hour will follow, and all the women of the city who are interested in the "Y" and its work are cordially invited to this meeting. The aprons, which were distributed at the June meeting, should be returned at this time.

FLASHES OF LIFE SKETCHED IN BRIEF

Theatre Ordinance Amended, Adopted By Common Council

Amendment Recommended by Mayor Heiselman Following Public Hearing is Approved—New Law Requires Theatres to Set Aside Section of Seats for Children.

Last month the Common Council adopted a local law which required the theatres in the city to set aside a section of seats on the main floor for the use of children only. The new local law was then referred to Mayor C. J. Heiselman, who held a public hearing on it which was attended by several interested theatre representatives. As a result of that hearing the mayor Tuesday evening sent in a communication to the common council asking that the new law be somewhat amended. The amendment proposed by the mayor was unanimously approved and the new law adopted.

Mayor Heiselman's communication reads as follows:

October 5, 1936
The Honorable,
The Common Council,
Kingston, New York.
Gentlemen:

I return herewith for amendment Local Law No. 2 of the year 1936 (known as Local Law No. 16 of the City of Kingston) providing for the licensing of movie theatres to permit the admission of unaccompanied children, provided the children are segregated and protected by a matron.

At the public hearing, held on the law on September 9, objection was made to Section 5, which provides that the size of the children's section may be reduced or increased upon proper showing by the theatre owner, operator or manager. I can understand that to repeatedly apply for permission to increase or decrease the size of the children's section is impractical and would place an unreasonable burden on the manager. I therefore recommend that Section 5 of said bill be amended to read as follows:

Section 5. Immediately upon receipt of said application as provided for in Section 2 hereof, the Mayor shall thereupon issue a license to said theatre, specifying the section of seats in said theatre as set aside, which license shall provide that the size of said section may be reduced or increased by said owner, operator or manager of said theatre, as the occasion warrants; that children over the age of eight years and under the age of 16 years may be admitted to said theatre unaccompanied by a parent, guardian or other adult person; that said children when so admitted must sit in the section of seats as designated; that said section must have a duly licensed matron in charge thereof; that a seat in said section must be provided for every such child admitted to said theatre; that such section so designated must be identified by a sign or signs reading, "Children's Section."

I further certify that it is necessary that this bill as amended be passed immediately for the reason that it is imperative that the children of our city be properly protected while attending the theatres.

Very truly yours,
C. J. HEISELMAN,
Mayor.

Martyr to BLACKHEADS PIMPLES For over 20 years

Read this remarkable, practical truth: "I suffered for at least 20 years with blackheads and pimples of various origin. The pimples were large, itchy and caused many embarrassing days. I tried numerous ointments and creams, but none gave relief. Then I bought Cuticura and after using only one-half a box of Cuticura Ointment along with Cuticura Soap, my skin was clear again." (Signed) Mrs. H. Simpson, 26-2nd Ave., San Francisco, Calif.
You, too, can find in Cuticura treatment relief for pimples, rashes, itching, eczema, irritation and other skin and scalp conditions of various origin. See your Dr. or write Cuticura, Dept. 27, Boston, Mass.

San Diego, Calif.—For once, Miles Standish will have to speak for himself.

He was arrested by a game warden and accused of bringing down two valley quail out of season with his fowling piece.

Appeal Granted

Hastings, Neb.—Justice will wait in district court here until Attorney F. L. Carrio's false teeth are re-adjusted.

Counsel for a plaintiff in a damage suit, Carrio came into court armed with a dentist's statement that his loose bridgework impeded elocution. A sympathetic judge continued the case to the next term.

Tough

Omaha, Neb.—Football coaches looking for a potential fullback might be advised to interview Leroy Marsh.

Leroy, 2½ years old, has shown he can take it. Twice within two weeks he has fallen 20 feet to the ground from the second story of his home, receiving only minor cuts and bruises. It wasn't so easy on mother—she fainted.

ZENA

Zena, Oct. 7.—The Christian Endeavor meeting on Friday was under the direction of Miss Anna Klemm. There were also short talks by Nelson Lewis and Edward Safford of Kingston and Miss Alice Holmberg. At next Friday's meeting, as well as at all of the remaining October meetings, there will be a special outside speaker.

Miss Helen Long of Low Beach spent the week-end with her parents here.

The many friends of Edward Hung, who sustained a broken leg and shoulder as a result of a fall from a roof early in August, are glad to hear that he was sufficiently recovered to return home from the Kingston Hospital on Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Carrington and Mr. and Mrs. Palmer Carrington are enjoying a short motor trip to Washington, D. C.

The Misses Marie Clancy and Hanna Hertzberg, who have been spending two weeks' vacation at the home of Miss Florence France, have returned to their home in New York City.

Doring Koerner of Berlin was a week-end guest at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Long.

Mr. and Mrs. Peter Geraghty and son, Peter, motored up from Queens Village with Mr. and Mrs. Grady to visit their daughter, Miss Rose Geraghty.

On Friday, Louis Thaler motored to New York City where he attended the World Series game on Sunday. After the game he returned to Zena with his mother, Mrs. Fred Thaler, who has been in New York since Wednesday.

Mrs. Joseph Whitney and daughter, Elizabeth, were away over the week-end.

Mrs. Clarence Buxton returned to her home in Poughkeepsie after visiting for a few days with her father, Walter France, who has been ill.

Mrs. Frank Lynch entertained Miss Florence France and her house guest, Miss Marie Clancy, at tea at her Lynwood home on Friday evening.

Mrs. Ernest Baldinger visited in New York City, several days last week.

Mr. and Mrs. William McTigue and son, William, of New Jersey were at their home here over the week-end.

Walter Richards motored up from Staten Island to spend the week-end at the Tichenor farm. Early Sunday morning he was taken ill with a severe heart attack. He is now under the care of Dr. Lambert of Woodstock.

Miss Carrie Carrington and Arthur Snyder of Newburgh spent the week-end at the Carrington home.

Mr. and Mrs. George Broadbent of Staten Island spent the week-end at their home here.

Mrs. Knauser and family returned to Rutherford, N. J., after spending the summer at their home here.

THURSDAY: Democrats—WJZ-NBC 12:15 p. m., "Women of '36." Republicans—WEAF-NBC 4:30, Landon Radio Club, Mrs. Friederick Nathan.

New York, Oct. 7 (AP)—It looks like Friday night on the networks is going to be pretty well filled with political broadcasting. The schedule as arranged so far calls for 2 hours and 15 minutes of it.

For the Republicans, Gov. A. M. Landon, from Chicago, is listed for a half hour on WEAF-NBC at 9:30. His running mate, Col. Frank Knox, also is scheduled for this slot, but only on the New York state section comprising WEAF, WOT, WJZ. However, speaking from Brooklyn, he is to go on twice, the half hour before and the 15 minutes after Gov. Landon talks. The Democratic speakers are to be Harold L. Ickes, secretary of the Interior, from Columbus, O., on WJZ-NBC at 9:30; with James M. Cox, former presidential candidate, from Dayton, O., via WABC-CBS at 10. Each has been assigned 30 minutes. Earl Browder, presidential candidate, is the Communist speaker for WJZ-NBC at 10:45. The regular political are the William Ward period on CBS and the Progressive 15 minutes on the same chain.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

New York, Oct. 7 (AP)—Inspired by the continued bright economic picture, the stock market today pushed into new high territory for the past 5 years.

Industrials and utilities led the vigorous rally, with gains of fractions to around 2 points. At times the steeper tape fell behind floor transactions.

The pace slowed in frequent profit taking intervals.

Transfers approximated 2,700,000 shares.

In a number of instances extreme advances were shaded or cancelled, but among better share performers were North American, Consolidated Edison, American Water Works, Columbia Gas, American Power & Light, United Corp., Electric Power & Light, U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Republic Steel, Woolworth, American Telephone, Western Union, Standard Oil of New Jersey, Texas Corp., Goodyear, Allied Chemical, Goodrich, Southern Pacific, Certain-teed, Greyhound Corp., Fajardo Sugar and Briggs Mfg.

In a restricted groove were General Motors, Chrysler, Montgomery Ward, Sears Roebuck, National Distillers, N. Y. Central, Pennsylvania, Union Pacific, National Distillers, Anaconda and Kennecott. Down about a point each were Santa Fe, Celanese, Deere and American Chain.

Quotations given by Parker McElroy & Co., members, N. Y. Stock Exchange, 120 Broadway, New York city; branch office, 282 Wall street; quotations at 2 o'clock.

Presbyterians Take Stand Against War In Mid-Hudson Area

Presbyterian churches in the mid-Hudson area went on record yesterday as refusing to sanction war as a means of settling international disputes. They did this through adoption of the so-called "Caruga Overture" in an all day meeting of the Presbytery of North River.

This overture, when adopted by a majority of such Presbyterian groups throughout the country, will make a change in the denomination's Confession of Faith which at present states that "magistrates may wage war under the New Testament on just occasions." This clause will be eliminated.

Practical effect of this change besides registering Presbyterian protest against war will be to give conscientious objectors in Presbyterian Churches the same standing as Quakers and with full support of the church behind them in their stand. It will not prevent any Presbyterian who so desires from bearing arms, however.

Other actions of the Presbytery yesterday were as follows: The Rev. Goodrich Gates, minister of the First Presbyterian Church of this city, was elected a delegate to the meeting of the Synod of New York, October 19 to 22. The Rev. James N. Armstrong, Jr., pastor of the Rondout Church, goes also, ex-officio, as a member of the committee on united promotion. Other elected ministerial delegates are the Rev. William J. McVey, and the newly elected permanent clerk, the Rev. Derrell S. Haynes, minister of Highland Presbyterian Church.

Committee appointments placed Mr. Armstrong again as chairman of National Missions. Dr. Gates was retained on the Presbytery's Committee on Christian Education. Relinquishing his position as chairman in charge of Men's Work, he was elected to be chairman in charge of Stewardship for the Presbytery. Robert D. Evans, Jr., an elder from the First Presbyterian Church, was appointed to the committee on resolutions with the Rev. Dr. Charles K. Imbrie of Newburgh, and elected to the committee on Foreign Missions.

Three pulpits were declared vacant. The Rev. Jonathan Greenleaf, retiring from Salt Point (Westminster) Church and the Rev. Murdoch J. McVey, resigning from Calvary Church, Newburgh, to engage in secular work. Other vacant pulpits include South America, Millerton and Hughsonville.

Primarily to consider stabilization of ministers' salaries, Mr. Armstrong, proponent of the winter meeting of Presbytery will be held all day instead of in the afternoon as usual. Larger powers given to the Committee on Christian Education on which Dr. Imbrie, Dr. Kerschner of Poughkeepsie, Dr. Gates and Moderator McVey are members, are intended to insure full compliance with Presbyterian standards for the admission of candidates for licensure and ordination. These standards include full college and seminary work, graduates from both alone to be considered.

The Committee on National Missions, Mr. Armstrong chairman, was about to be authorized to purchase a motion picture projector for use in all Presbyterian churches of this area when an offer of one made by the Rev. Howard McKinley of Beacon was accepted. Besides the local ministers and Elder Evans, Kingston was represented by Elder Hugh McCullough of the Rondout church.

PORT EWEN

Port Ewen, Oct. 7.—Mr. and Mrs. Basil C. Potter spent the week-end in New York city.

It will be greatly appreciated if friends of the Port Ewen firemen who will donate candy for the firemen's fair to be held in Pythian Hall, October 12, 14 and 15 will leave it with Miss Helen Schryver or Mrs. Esther Sleight.

Mrs. John Lynn is visiting her brother-in-law and sister, the Rev. Grant Robinson and Mrs. Robinson, at Walton.

A meeting of the official board of the Methodist Episcopal Church will be held at the parsonage at 7:30 Thursday evening.

Trustees reminded that Mrs. Edith Schryver, collector of School District No. 12 is collecting school taxes at her home on Broadway. After October 15 five per cent will be charged.

PROPHETIC BIBLE CONFERENCE TO BE HELD

At the Christian and Missionary Alliance church at 203 Greenhill avenue, of which the Rev. Lester Luck is the pastor, there will be held a prophetic Bible Conference. The Rev. F. L. Holden of the Birmingham Bible School at Bible School Park, N. Y., is one who has made a special study of the future both of the Jews and Gentiles and has some very interesting charts which he uses when lecturing on these subjects throughout the country. On Thursday, Friday and Saturday evenings, October 8, 9, and 10 he will speak on "God's Chosen People".

On Sunday afternoon at 3 and again at 7:45 p. m. the Rev. F. L. Holden will speak on the coming world dictator.

Localities Transferred. Ernest Lucklike, a Society employee, has been transferred from Kingston to Poughkeepsie, where he is assistant manager of a large station on the Albany Post Road.

Arrives in India. Karachi, India, Oct. 7 (AP)—The English aviator, Jean Batten, flying from New Zealand, arrived here today.

Special Interests Discussed at P. T. A. Convention Today

This morning's session of the P. T. A. Convention held at the Governor Clinton Hotel was in the nature of a family gathering, wherein various problems of special interest to the organization were considered and discussed. The session was presided over by Mrs. Harry E. McCormick, Central Hudson District director.

The invocation was given by Rabbi Herbert I. Bloom.

"The Effective Parent-Teacher Association, Its Opportunities to Understand Itself, the Tools Through Which It Works, the Machine Through Which It Works," was the involved subject which was well handled by Mrs. Avery J. Pratt, who counted the "Kit of Tools" to be the P. T. A. Manual; the various conferences of units, county, state and national bodies of P. T. A., which present the means by which these organizations may do their work the most efficiently and satisfactorily. "Programs" were counted as another valuable tool, provided these programs are well made. Mrs. Pratt stressed the fact that after all individual membership, well informed and enthusiastic was about as efficient a tool as one could find in the making of valuable Parent-Teacher Associations and accomplishing the work they wish to do.

"Membership," a specific tool was splendidly presented for discussion by Mrs. John Holloran. The subject was thoroughly considered from the angle of the small unit and membership, to that of the High School P. T. A. membership in large cities, with the complications arising when students in high school object to their parents being members of the P. T. A. Drives and their setup, personal solicitation of membership, and all the means to be found in between were talked over and considered under Mrs. Holloran's guidance. Also the seeming confusion as to dues of various sorts, for units, district and state were cleared up. A spirit of hospitality was found to be very necessary on the part of present members to bring in new members. The need of fathers as active members of our P. T. A. was stressed also, and the various points raised were thoroughly discussed in a very enlightening fashion.

The very dry and drab but necessary topic of "The Budget" was made live and full of interest by its presentation by Mrs. Lewis Fellows of Saugerties. She began by making perfectly plain just what a budget is, and its connection with drives that bring in the money that will be needed for carrying on the P. T. A. work. Mrs. Fellows also discussed the minds of any present who thought that there were salaried P. T. A. workers. A plain difference was made for welfare work and educational work which is the explicit activity of the P. T. A. and therefore should be taken care of by the budget. All present were advised to make up their budget in the most simple but comprehensive fashion, and the proper standing of the treasurer, the finance and the executive committee with relations to each other and the association was cleared up. When it came to a discussion of welfare work in connection with the budget, Mrs. Lewis and some of the other members as well as Mrs. McCormick emphasized the advisability of handling welfare work, which is usually of an emergency character, through the raising of a special fund and not placing it within the scope of the budget. When this topic was brought to the close of consideration there must have been a much clearer idea on the part of those present as to the necessity of a budget, living within that budget, and handling welfare activities outside the budget.

Mrs. Richard Scandrett gave a most illuminating and helpful talk on "Publicity," separating what thinking from a separate presentation of a subject to catch and hold the interest of the uninitiated, carried on according to the rules of publicity or according to the rules of the Council of Public Relations, Mrs. Scandrett showed the vital importance of getting the important phase of any subject to be publicized before those whom it is desirable to interest. Local tie-ups with state and national news agencies of the P. T. A. itself were explained and so was "quick news," and human interest stories and even disguised news which may be so exceedingly important. Illustrations of such different forms of publicity were given. The speaker also heartily advocated the getting into touch with newspapers that will be used by units and larger groups, to learn just what they require, desire and object to in the presentation of news, and in what shape each particular newspaper desires to receive the news, by copy, ready for the rewrite man or suggested news for the whole objective of creating public opinion is to get action of a specific kind for the group desiring the publicity. Lack of time makes necessary the briefest reports of the morning's session, but each leader of a subject this morning had her subject matter splendidly in hand so that what was said from the platform drew out intelligent and valuable discussion from the floor.

Luncheon was at noon and the speaker at the luncheon was to be Commissioner Byrnes Mac Donald whose topic was to be "The Meaning and Value of Play."

The convention was to be brought to a close with the afternoon session.

Right To Sue County Questioned In Court

Testimony in behalf of the five plaintiffs who are seeking to recover damages from the County of Ulster had the State of New York for injuries which they received on Christmas night, 1934, when their Chevrolet car collided with a county owned motor truck which was engaged in sanding the state highway, was closed and the defense opened its case this morning. The matter is being heard before Justice Schirlick and a jury in supreme court.

Mildred L. Harrington, Douglas L. White, Roger Harrington and Betty V. Ames seek to recover damages for injuries suffered, and Blanche Harrington, as administratrix of the estate of her husband, seeks to recover for damages to the car. All of the parties are from Rosbury. On the evening of the accident the party was enroute to Kingston to meet a train which was to convey one of the young women to New York city, where she worked. On a curve and grade west of West Hurley the county owned truck was going up for the purpose of sanding the hills and turns because of a snow and sleet storm which had made the travel difficult.

At the point of the accident, which the plaintiffs allege took place on a straight stretch beyond the curve, the truck and car collided inflicting injuries to the occupants of the car, all of whom were treated at the Kingston Hospital and then left that evening for home in Roxbury.

Plaintiffs allege that the truck was first going around the curve. At that time the lights were distinguished by the reflection but the truck was not actually in sight as the Chevrolet car rounded the curve the witnesses testified they saw the vehicle with blinding lights on its left side of the road. The operator of the Chevrolet, Roger Harrington, turned to his left to pass the truck and at the same time the truck, he said, turned back toward its right and the two vehicles collided.

The witness who took the injured to the hospital testified that after the impact he came along and saw the lights of the cars and slowed down on the grade. As he approached the accident he saw there had been an accident and slowed down more in order to get to the scene. He pulled his car to the right of the road and went together with the vehicles which were jammed between the fence and the vehicles on his right of the road. The guard rail he said was close to the pavement at the spot but he was able to pass and then stopped and picked up the injured and took them to the hospital where he then called the police and asked them to notify Arthur Hallman, who was then county superintendent of highways. This was done at the request of the men who were operating the truck.

At the opening of court this morning A. J. Cook, who appears for the defendants, moved to dismiss the complaint on the grounds the plaintiffs had not paid the county. This was denied by the court and then Mr. Cook moved for a dismissal on the grounds the plaintiffs had no right to bring an action against the county and state since the truck involved in the accident was engaged in governmental work at the time. He held that the county and state could not be sued in supreme court without permission. Justice Schirlick reserved decision on that matter but permitted the defense to proceed with the taking of testimony.

Little Girl Has Narrow Escape from Death at Port Ewen

Quick action in averting his car saved the life of a little girl, but cost James B. Mohr of 247 Washington avenue to the Kingston Hospital this morning with a badly bruised and lacerated left hand and bruises about the body.

Flankie was driving south on S. W. when near the Port Ewen school house, a little girl, chasing a ball which had gone out of the schoolyard and into the road, ran directly into the path of his car. He swerved the car sharply and succeeded in avoiding a head-on collision, but the sharp turn caused the car to overturn. Flankie's hand was lacerated when it went as the car turned over onto its side. The W. N. Conner ambulance was called and took the injured man to the hospital.

The car, a Chevrolet coupe, was not seriously damaged. Deputies from the sheriff's office and state troopers investigated the accident.

Children of Home To Attend Circus

James Schirlick, Post, Veterans of Foreign Wars, has invited the children of the Industrial Home to be the guests of the organization on Friday afternoon at the big indoor circus playing this week in the Municipal Auditorium. Members of the Post who have cars are asked to get in touch with Commander Green so that arrangements may be made to convey the children from the Industrial Home to the circus and back again.

Commander Green is asking that all who have circus books return them as quickly as possible either to the Deputy, Green headquarters or to the Auditorium.

Grading Case Postponed. The hearing in the claim of Charles Grady of the Roundtable Road for land taken by the city, which was to have been continued Wednesday morning, was postponed until October 14 at 9:30.

Bowling Team. The bowling team that will defend the name of the Town of Kingston from now on will consist of: Plunkett, E. Frank Plunkett, Wall Street, N. Y. City, having agreed to that the league that season.

I.; Mr. and Mrs. William Schuler, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Gerritsen of St. Remy, Walter Swark, Mr. and Mrs. Martin Edleson and Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Edleson. The guests departed at a late hour in the morning wishing Fred many more happy birthdays.

Brennan-Pinkman

New Paltz, Oct. 7.—Miss Lillian Mary Pinkman, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Pinkman of Stamfordville, and a graduate of New Paltz Normal School, became the bride of James Edward Brennan, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Brennan, also of Stamfordville, on Saturday morning at 10 o'clock at the church of the Immaculate Conception at Bangall, Dutchess county.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Cornelius Norris, pastor of the church. Mrs. Charles Ward, organist of the church, played the wedding marches. The church decorations were fall garden flowers and autumn leaves. The bride was gown in royal blue velvet with hat and gloves to match and carried garden flowers. Miss Marian Lennigan of Bangall was bridesmaid and wore a wine colored dress with matching accessories and garden flowers. Hugh Brennan was his brother's best man. A reception for members of the families was held after the ceremony at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Brennan, for a trip north by motor. Mrs. Brennan wore a black traveling suit. Upon their return they will make their home at Stamfordville, where Mr. Brennan is employed at Elmer Devine's store.

Stork Shower

On Saturday evening, October 3, a stork shower was tendered Mrs. George Walker, Jr., at her home on Salem street, Port Ewen, by Mrs. Edward Drake and Mrs. William Webster. During the evening Eugene Knapp played several numbers on his piano accordion and at midnight a delightful lunch was served. Mrs. Walker was the recipient of many beautiful gifts, and in the wee hours of the morning the guests departed, wishing Mr. and Mrs. Walker much luck. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. William Webster, Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Drake, Mr. and Mrs. E. Smith, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Lester Locke, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Booth, Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Baker, Mr. and Mrs. Ray McAndrew, Mr. and Mrs. Clark Bonesteel, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Murdoch, Mr. and Mrs. LeRoy Webster, Mr. and Mrs. Augustus Houghtaling, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hungerford, Mr. and Mrs. William Keyser, Mrs. Ed. Atwood Birthdays

Harry Markle and sons, Tracy and Frederick Markle, of New City, N. Y., and Charles Osterhout, and Lawrence Markle of Atwood gave a surprise birthday party to their mother, Mrs. Cella Osterhout, Saturday night in honor of her 87th birthday, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Markle of Atwood. Honorary guest was Richard Krom, a brother of Mrs. Cella Osterhout, who soon will be 91 years old. It was also the birthday of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Markle. The gifts were large and numerous. Music was furnished by modern and old fashioned dancing by Mr. and Mrs. Lait Avery of Stone Ridge Heights. The decorations were red, white and blue, and autumn leaves. Supper was served and the main attraction on the table was the very large birthday cake weighing 10 pounds, which Harry Markle of New City brought with him. The out-of-town guests were from New York, Brooklyn, Long Island, Valley Cottage, New City, Hilldale, New Jersey, and Kingston. The party was continued Sunday with a clam bake and beef steak roast in the pine grove back of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Markle's home. All present had a jolly time and Mrs. Cella Osterhout's sons and daughters, grandchildren and great grandchildren hope she will live to reach her hundredth birthday. For a woman of her age she is very active, and the past month she has canned all kind of fruit and vegetables from her garden.

First Reports in Drive for Funds For the Boy Scouts

First reports in the Boy Scout finance campaign were received Tuesday evening and showed that good progress is being made.

Catskill reported $236 for their first report, which is 19 per cent of their goal; Greenville reported $92, which is 92 per cent of their goal; Tannersville, $85, 21 per cent; Hunter, $75, 50 per cent; Windham, $156.50, 103 per cent; Honesville, $41, 117 per cent; Maplesport, $19, 25 per cent; Saugerties, $350, 36 per cent. The second report will be made tonight when other towns, who were a bit tardy in getting under way, will have their reports.

Kingston chairman, E. A. Freer, reported two more teams ready this morning, as follows:

Trinity M. E. Church—J. Ferdinand Voigt, captain, George E. Lowe, Lester Feltner, Edgar Freese, Edward J. Hillis, F. H. Deming, Temple Emanuel Men's Club—Dr. Paul Perlmutter, captain, Elmer Nathan, S. Rudisch, A. D. Rouser, Sam Mann, N. B. Gross, Arthur Ewig, and Dr. Harold Mandell.

Four Cases Before Cullton in Court

William West, a negro of Richmond Park, was arrested about 2 o'clock this morning by Edward Leghorn at the Palen riding stables, near the new state armory, and turned over to the police on a charge of third degree assault. Leghorn claimed that West struck him in the jaw, loosening his teeth. The hearing was adjourned to Friday morning and bail fixed at $25.

Walter J. Kent, of 76 Clifton avenue, was arrested today on a charge of indecent exposure of his person. Later he was arraigned before Judge Cullton and pleaded guilty. Imposition of sentence was deferred until October 13. Kent's arrest followed a telephone complaint to police headquarters.

Orville Palen of RFD 2, arrested on a charge of using license plates on his car that had been issued for another car, was fined $2.

Perry Lynch of Cedar street was fined $5 for public intoxication.

Local Death Record

The funeral of Miss Mary F. Landers was held this morning at 10 o'clock at the chapel in the Convent of St. Anne where a requiem Mass was offered for the repose of her soul by the Rev. A. P. S. Hyde, rector of Holyrood Church in New York city. Interment was in the Church of the Ascension cemetery at West Park, where the committal services were conducted by the Rev. Father Hyde.

Funeral services for David Watterhahn, who died Sunday, were conducted Tuesday afternoon at his late home, 41 Wurts street, by Rabbi Herbert I. Bloom of Temple Emanuel, and were largely attended by relatives, friends and members of organizations to which the prominent downtown business man belonged. Floral pieces were numerous and beautiful. Rabbi Bloom paid tribute to the deceased as a loyal member of the temple, a model family man and an honest and upright citizen in all his dealings with his fellow men. Committal services were conducted by Rabbi Bloom in Wiltwyck Cemetery where interment was made in the family plot. Monday night Rondo Lodge, 343 E. F. M., conducted ritualistic services at the home. Mr. Watterhahn had been a member for 45 years of this organization. Other clubs that visited the home were the U.P.A., C. & R. Socials, Cornell Hose and the Board of Fire Commissioners of which his son, Edwin, is a member. Honorary bearers were Harry Jacobs, Selig Oppenheimer, Adam Salzman, Clifford Bennett, Henry Albright, Louis Herold, Barney Mann, Morris Berman, Follett Wolf and Dr. S. T. Levitas. Active bearers were Melvin Wolf, Sam N. Mann, Albert Katz, Lester Vogel, Max Forst and Jack Greenwald.

Managerial Shakeups Forecast, Ruth May Handle Brooklyn Dodgers

New York, Oct. 7 (AP)—In the wake of the latest World Series earthquake promoted by the hired hands of Col. Jacob Ruppert, major league baseball is due for a series of shakeups.

Casey Stengel's sudden release by the Brooklyn Dodgers is believed by most insiders to be the forerunner of several managerial changes, particularly in the National League.

At the same time a change in the Brooklyn ownership is understood on good authority to be imminent. There is talk of revival of the reports that Col. T. L. Huston's negotiations for the purchase of the club from the Ebbets-McKeever estates will go through within a few weeks.

Whether Babe Ruth, this year's forgotten man of baseball, will be given a spot in the Brooklyn picture, possibly as manager under a new ownership, remains to be seen.

Manager Jimmy Wilson of the Phillies, Rogers Hornsby of the St. Louis Browns, and Bill McKee of the Boston Bees are "others mentioned" in the early "stove league" debate over possible changes. McKee's name entered the discussion as a possible choice to take over the field leadership of the Giants, if and when Bill Terry decided to move to a front-office executive spot. Terry, however, still has two years to go on a five-year contract as manager of the National League champions, the Memphis Reds, as well as his sidekick, Travis (Stonewall) Jackson, probably have played their last games as regulars with the club in the World Series. Terry wanted to retire this year from active play, hobbled through the last part of the season and the series on one leg. His potential successor is Sam Leslie but Long John McHenry, obtained near the end of the season from Newark.

Settlement of the case of Bob Feller, sensational rookie strikeout king, made his debut with the Cleveland Indians, is awaited with much interest by big leaguers. Commissioner Landis has under consideration the charge that Cleveland violated the major-league agreement by signing Feller directly from the minors, in territory of the Detroit Club. The decision as to the fate of Cleveland's possession is expected for two or three weeks. It might mean an explosion if Feller is taken from the club. Feller, whereas the Yankees are well liked, with player resources, for some time to come, their American rivals must do a lot of retooling this winter. This applies to the gold-plated Red Sox, who have now decided to discard a policy of trying to develop a "winner" with high-priced players.

Cardinal "Gas House Gang" likely to be the club to beat in the National League next year. Injuries up the St. Louis Club this year but the chain-store system set up a stock of promising new players. Manager Frankie Frisch's days probably are behind him but he will have another formidable crew in the race, especially if Dean returns to pitching to help his big brother, Dizzy.

Basketball Seats Are on Sale Now

Frank Morgenweck, manager of Kingston American League basketball team, is devoting all of his time to the sale of reserved seats to the team and will continue to do so until the opening of the training season.

Morgenweck said he is anxious to get his seat business over with by the 15th so that he may devote all his time from then on to working in the Municipal Auditorium. A year there will be an open night for spectators to watch the team go through their paces. For the convenience of those who reserved seats last season, the management of the club will keep

Maroon Gridders Hold First Drill For Poughkeepsie Game Saturday

The K. H. S. board of football strategy began preparations for the next offensive drive in the current victory march. With Poughkeepsie looming up as the forthcoming objective to be overcome, Coach Kinsella ordered the first drill of the week yesterday afternoon at the Athletic field.

A lengthy workout saw the varsity squad engage in a series of fundamental phases involving blocking, passing and running through plays in signal practice. However, for a day at least, the spotlight was focused on the second and third teams who put on one of their practice dramas. Assistant Coach Kinsella's unit put up a brilliant display of courageous football to gain a moral victory over their supposed betters. With the distinctive assistant center as the driving force, the third team swept the second of their feet. After a sustained drive, Livvy culminated a series of plays driving through by literally blasting through right guard and sweep aside some hanging secondary to register the much-needed third-down gain. "Lefty" brought the "C" unit within scoring distance by making a sensational juggling catch of a long range pass but it was too good to last and the intended third failed to

Colonial League Has Organized

The Colonial Bowling League, which held its organization meeting Tuesday night at the North Front street alley, will run along this year with eight teams, opening its schedule Thursday night at 7:30. Teams in the league are Mill Street Garage, Rose and Gorman, Mohicans, Amell Brothers, A. & P., and Longendyke's service station. The Central Hudson is expected to join. Election of officers will be held prior to the first games.

Two Games on Slate For Yellow Jackets

Booking Manager Al Flanagan, the Wall street clothier, has two games on the schedule of Brown's Richmond Yellow Jackets this weekend. The Waps will play in Albany, Friday night, and behind the big gray walls of Sing Sing, Sunday.

Flanagan received the invitation to play the Knickerbockers at Hawkins Stadium in the capital city last night. The Albanians wanted the Jackets for Sunday, but a previous acceptance of an invitation from Warden Lewis E. Lawes to oppose his Black Sheep made the northern trip impossible.

The Knickerbocker management wanted the Yellow Jackets badly, however, and ran them in for the night game, which will be a new experiment for the Waps, playing under arc lights. It shouldn't be too new, though, as the local toasters are accustomed to practicing night. They are scheduled to hold two drills in the parking grounds back of the Rose & Gorman store, one tonight and the other Thursday.

Cross Country Team Held 1st Meeting

Coach Kinsella issued the first call for cross-country candidates yesterday afternoon at Kingston High School. A meeting for the purposes of enrolling candidates was held in Room 13. Cross-country is a minor sport at the local institution and lack of proper training facilities have hampered the efforts of the teams in the past. A definite program of meets has not yet been arranged due to the uncertainty of the future of the sport this season. The makeup of this year's team will not be determined until after the elimination trials which are scheduled to be held in the near future. Kingston did fairly well last season in this field what with such stalwarts as

American Defenders of Speed Honors Set for Oct. 12

1. Wm. E. Cummings. 2. Walter Shaw. 3. Babe Stapp.

NEW YORK—The "two-mile-a-minute men" of America are rallying to the defense of their speed honors.

When the top-notch drivers of Europe challenge in the inaugural 600-mile international road race for the George Vanderbilt Cup at the new Roosevelt Raceway Columbus day, October 12, stars of Indianapolis will be flying the Stars and Stripes.

These three pictured above will give the invaders plenty of trouble. Wild Bill Cummings, who won the 500-mile race in 1934 and went on to the national championship as a deft driver as ever twirled a wheel.

He is always in the money when his car keeps running and will have a special-built job for the international classic.

Little Walter Shaw, the dapper dandy of the daredevils, has been in the money four times at Indianapolis, placing second in two of the Decatur Day races. He had the fastest car at Indianapolis last year but was hindered by unforeseen mechanical difficulties. He has converted the same car for the big fall race.

Elbert "Babe" Stapp is a veteran youngster of American speed paths. He has led the pack in eight of nine races over the Indianapolis bricks but has always been beset with mechanical difficulties. He will drive under the American banner for the wealthy sportsman Henry J. Torrey, Jr., but will use a European car.

Here are three of a kind that will match any strong European band.

Rosendale Old Home Reunion

The second Rosendale Old Home Reunion, which will be held this week-end, is expected to eclipse the great success of last year. The program will start Saturday and continue through Monday, Columbus Day. The reunion and celebration is being sponsored by the Rosendale Township Association, with the assistance of other local organizations. This same group sponsored the affair of last fall when 19 New York state historical markers were dedicated and a reunion banquet held.

A reception and dance will be held at Phippen's Hall at 8 o'clock Saturday night. This will be the first opportunity for the old timers to renew their old acquaintances, and will be the beginning of the grand round of pleasures for the week-end.

On Sunday morning, all the churches will hold special welcome home services and receptions, in honor of the returned guests.

An old fashioned barbecue and picnic will be held at Williams Lake beginning at 1:30 Sunday afternoon. This will be the second opportunity for all the guests and townspeople to get together in one place and meet each other. A series of playground games directed by Charles Henke, physical director of the Kingston Y. C. A., will be held before the barbecue.

The barbecue dinner, which will be the main meal of the week-end, will be held outdoors if it shines and indoors if it rains. The Township Association feels fortunate in securing John Paulus, well-known Poughkeepsie caterer, to do the job of serving the returned guests. No end has been spared by the Association to make this an outstanding event long to be remembered.

Although ample provisions have been made to accommodate all comers to the barbecue, caterer guarantees it necessary for all reservations in by Friday, October 8.

Sunday evening, a reception and entertainment will be conducted at the associated ladies of the town at St. Peter's Hall. A play reproduced by the Rosendale Association will be shown over at the St. Peter's reception Sunday evening.

An inspection trip to the new plant of A. J. Snyder will be a feature. To see the modern of this industry which has been made world famous for a century will be interesting to old timers who were familiar with the old hand methods of manufacturing the cement ore.

Members of the Celebration Committee, with whom barbecue reservations will be placed are E. P. Demarest, Williams, W. Welsler, Mrs. M. E. Huben, Joseph A. J. Snyder.

The Hospitality Committee are J. Curtin, chairman, Bedford, James Butler, Buckley, Oliver Carter, Martin, Mrs. Mary W. Conger, Mann, Frederick Dewey, Peter M. E. Dexter, Nathaniel Dugan, J. Doonan, E. Frank, E. H. Demarest, Nicholas, P. J. Foley, Mrs. William M. J. Fitzpatrick, Eugene H. Keator, Thomas A. Keator, Tracy Keator, Buel Lacher, M. D. King, John Lucy, M. D. Force Dispute Over Contract

Tiffany said, the document contained, "that Mr. Stratton had informed him that he had better go through with the contract and that he had had contracts with other people who had also not liked those contracts but had gone through with them after Mr. Stratton had turned the heat.

Did Not Accept Check
"Mr. Fokker stated his satisfaction with Mr. Tiffany's method of including the contract in the way it did, involving a cash payment of $1,000 for Mr. Roosevelt and the payment of a further check of $6,000 through a brokerage house which it was difficult for Mr. Elliott Roosevelt to accept in view of the President's dispute with Wall Street at the time.

"Mr. Tiffany and Mr. Fokker both stated that the check had never been cashed or returned but that Mr. Tiffany had finally stopped payment on the check."

Elliott Roosevelt's account was different. He said that in May, 1934, he asked to be released from the contract with Fokker.

"He wanted me to go through with it," Roosevelt said, "and I refused and he released me. I believe he has held it against me, and that may be an explanation of this disposition."

"Some time in May of that year the Fokker organization in New York mailed me a check for $6,000. I notified them I was not accepting it and was tearing it up; that the contract was off. I believe the bank was then notified to stop payment on the check."

Associated With News
Elliott Roosevelt now is associated with the radio interests of William Randolph Hearst, publisher.

He studied the airplanes in which Commander Richard E. Byrd flew to the North Pole and in which two army lieutenants made one of the first non-stop flights from New York to California.

NEW TYPE OF FAIRY TALE IS APPEARING

Rocket Ships, Rays and Robots Get Into Folk Lore.

New York.—A new type of fairy-tale is being evolved in the United States in which the characters jump in rocket ships from planet to planet, use death rays and other creations of a super-science, Clemence Dane, English critic, asserts in the North American Review.

"The peri of Arabian Nights is a majestic female, differing only from her human sister in her superior beauty and in her magic powers. The English elf, on the other hand, lurks in a cowslip bell, and has an irresponsible sense of humor," points out Miss Dane. And indeed there is no country in the world which fairies have not haunted, no land in the world which is not 'fulfilling with fairy'—except the United States. This republic has not domesticated the wendigo and the summer-maker of the Indian, for it is a modern state, a state whose wonders are material, 'scientific.' And since science is the absolute foe of mystery, how then can there be magic in America?

Craves to Be Illuded.
"Yet the most modern human craves to be illuded. He has moods in which he feels that it is his right to understand the speech of the wind and see the light that never was on land or sea. He must put the moon in his pocket sometimes, and split open an orange so that a princess may step out. Beast must befriend him, birds advise him. He must wield an invisible sword, wear an invisible cape, and be shod with galoshes of fortune. That is his need: this is in his nature to desire and no material splendors nor abstractions of the arts will do instead. He is hungry for magic and nothing else. It is a word he must have his fairy-tale."

"But the moderns do not believe in fairy-tales. What is to be done? The old world squares the circle by feeding itself with fairy-tales in childhood and renouncing belief in them afterwards. But Uncle Sam has only his fading Indian legends—the fairy-tales of another race. What then is he to do?

Entirely New System.
"Go without? Not at all. He is not to be cheated out of a good thing, and he solves the problem of supplying this vitamin in his spiritual daily food in a characteristically American way. He has invented, or he is at present about the business of inventing, an entirely new system of fairy-tales that shall satisfy all his desires for the unknown, shall give him breathless illusions and incredible visions, and yet shall satisfy his machine-governed, machine-stimulated, scientific consciousness," continues Miss Dane in the North American Review. "A pumpkin which turns into a fairy coach is a piece of silliness, but he is perfectly ready to accept a robot, the superspeed ship which takes him in one turn of the handle beyond the farthest star of known space and into another dimension altogether. He will accept a robot, but not a dragon. He will travel to Jupiter, but not to the Islands of the Blessed."

"We English go to the past for our fairy-tales, America to the future. The Old World knows that once there was a golden age, and all her fairy-tales concern this future."

Lowly Beans Rate High With Michigan Indians

Lansing.—Michigan Indians, it seems, eat too many beans.

For breakfast they eat cold beans, for lunch they sip bean soup, and for supper they have pork and beans. On Sundays, holidays and feast days, they eat more beans.

Mrs. Alice Griswold, nutrition expert of the state emergency relief commission, has returned to Lansing from a survey of the bean-eating Indians, and is quite worried about the effect of their steady bean diet.

They are given beans from the Federal surplus relief commodity stores, and in addition, they are given ERA money to buy other kinds of food. Invariably they buy pork and beans.

Although beef is available, they refuse to buy it. Fresh fruits and vegetables they ignore, and if they buy any milk, it is canned. The only change from beans they tolerate is an occasional fish, or a handful of berries.

ERA records show that medical costs for stomach ailments, digestive ailments and similar forms of sickness are disproportionately high in the counties where Indians live. ERA case workers are trying to educate Indian cooks to a more varied diet, but without much success so far.

Hollywood Sights And Sounds

By Robin Coons

HOLLYWOOD.—Were you ever alone-in-a-crowd with a movie star? Granted you've just met your pet idol, then what—what do you talk about? Here are some tips:

If it's Clark Gable, you can swim along on horses, horses, horses, especially race horses, or automobiles (fast and odd ones) or hunting or skeet-shooting. Just mention any of these and you're off.

For Joan Blondell, better start with babies. Yours or hers, or both, or babies in general. For Guy Kibbee the sure-breaker (if you feel you need one) is Abbie, Jeanette MacDonald's whole attention is yours if you speak to her in French, or bring up foreign travel, mystery stories, big dogs or music. Try travel and odd far-away places on Errol Flynn, too. Tell Bette Davis or Virginia Field a good story and you're set.

Dick Powell likes to talk about radio, Dolores del Rio about life and living, clothes, travel, ideas. But don't start with clothes or styles if you've just met Kay Francis—it leaves her cold. Charles Laughton responds to talk of people in general and interesting characters in particular. Jean Harlow? The quintessential, or first editions, or ice hockey or painting Edward G. Robinson warms up to paintings, too. Just ask him what he's bought lately.

Mention the plight of the underdog to James Cagney, Robert Montgomery or Humphrey Bogart and the conversational race is on. Frieda Inescort (she used to work with books) goes for literature. Wallace Beery and George Brent stick with you if you start off with flying. But Rosalind Russell prefers bridge, books, the theater or any current topic. With Robert Taylor your best bet is tennis, but if you don't know a love set from a home run you can try psychology, girls, college, travel, or boxing.

Pictures Are Ham 'n' Eggs
Pat O'Brien, like most of them, isn't difficult. All you have to do is ask him how his baby is—and then duck, because he'll still be talking about Mavourneen after you've gone. Joan Crawford keeps up on modern literature, so that's a good bet. But if all you know is sewing you're still safe, as you are with music, philosophy and travel. You name it and she'll talk about it.

Breathe "real estate" to Glenda Farrell, but specify farm lands to Edmund Lowe, Hugh Herbert and Claude Rains. Farming gets Francis Lederer's ear, too, but world peace is surefire there.

Lovers of satire strike it off with William Powell, who yields to talk of food, politics, Riviera life and location trips with equal readiness. If you can't think of anything better, ask Carole Lombard how she thinks up those clever parables.

But when in doubt, with any of 'em, remember this: pictures just pictures, are your ham-and-eggs.

Delinquency Is Due To Environment

cause of the whole matter rests entirely with the parents either because economic worries make those parents lose sight of the importance of their guiding influence in the life of their children or else they sit back and take the attitude of "letting God do it" by leaving it up to the educational system to supply the training that should have its foundation in the home. "The parents' loss in the sponge and expect the schools to fill in the vacancy. Then the schools may act indifferent towards the matter of training in the proper lines and they too 'lose in the sponge' with the result that the social worker must step in to fill the gap." In this part of the procedure, the social worker may arrive too late because he has not been notified of the condition and the result of this is that sometimes youth has already made a mistake that could have been prevented, the speaker explained.

Young people have no definite desire to get into trouble but their desire to emulate some person is liable to end up in the wrong direction. The lad that has "done a stretch" in the reformatory is sometimes the idol and hero of the neighborhood group and there the emulation is building on the wrong foundation, he said.

Education for Parents.
Sometimes, and the speaker pointed out that that time was all too frequent, the parents "erect young people from their homes like the family who has not paid the rent" because the children have become of sufficient age to be earning something towards the support of the home and they cannot find anything to do. At this period, youth is endeavoring to learn the answers to life and the parents should have the education themselves whereby they can answer these questions in the proper manner and not leave the youngsters to find out from outside and oftentimes unreliable sources the why and wherefore to the vital problems that puzzle the young people.

Sex delinquency is especially high in youth today because the home lacks the proper teaching in this vital question. The problem is often sidestepped with a resulting ignorance that is the open gate to trouble.

Community Influence
The influence of the community plays an important part in the delinquency of youth. The speaker pointed out that the school system could save the state a good deal of money if the education of youth was given more classification; that is the ability of the young person should be sought out and then he should be taught to build up that natural ability so that it could become his life's work. "It's the job of parents and school to discover the natural ability of the young person and then to evaluate that young life by direct education along the correct trend of ability." This is where the Parent-Teacher Association is interested because it can spread the idea that young people want definite interests, that they like to be considered a part of the home life and that more will be accomplished by talking over matters with them and giving youth a feeling of security that will have a beneficial effect upon them.

Community conditions will leave a definite mark on the character of the young person. The speaker cited an instance of his work in the slum district where he had thought that he had succeeded in making over a life, but the underlying tradition that had originated in the slums had so contaminated that life that all the effort that had been spent in an endeavor to correct that particular youth went for naught in one night, with the result that the law finally had its inning and that youth came to a sad end—in a prison.

Therefore communities should drive on to eliminate slums and to get behind movements such as those for stamping out venereal diseases.

breaking down prostitution, and giving a general house-cleaning to all objectionable community features. One effective way of accomplishing these tasks was through public support of the educational system, he said. Another way was placed before the audience as a method of crime prevention by electing men to public office who will endeavor to stamp out crime and will further the educational facilities. Mr. Wales exhorted his listeners to "think in terms of individual education and not in mass education," and then he brought his address to a close with the words, "I salute you because we are all fighting the same battle."

State President Speaks
The final speaker of the evening was Mrs. Brodie, who used the topic, "Looking Forward." She pointed out that the Parent-Teacher Association could be an effective force in child welfare work, and she expressed the hope that a system of parental education could be worked out that would make the dreams of success of her organization come true because of the worthwhile work that could be accomplished by this group.

Mrs. Brodie further explained that the great need of the P-T A. was a better understanding among the parents of the scope of work possible for this organization, and that this condition brought on the need for increased publicity that would tend to educate the people in this work of child welfare.

The state president brought her address and also the evening's program to a close with the announcement of the celebration of the 40th anniversary of the Parent-Teacher Association that will be held in 1937 at the Waldorf-Astoria in New York city.

Roosevelt Tour Announced Today

Washington, Oct. 7 (AP)—The White House today announced the itinerary for President Roosevelt's western campaign, disclosing it called for major speeches at Omaha, Neb., Saturday night and at Chicago October 14.

The President will leave here about noon tomorrow instead of Friday as originally planned. The trip will terminate at Hyde Park October 17.

Mr. Roosevelt will travel as far west as Denver, Colo., and Cheyenne, Wyo., and also will carry his campaign into the home state of his rival for the presidency, Governor Alf M. Landon of Kansas.

He will visit Iowa, Minnesota, Nebraska, Wyoming, Colorado, Kansas, Missouri, Illinois, Michigan, Ohio, and New York.

Although speeches will be made at Denver the morning of October 12 and at Detroit the afternoon of October 15, White House officials indicated these would be of the regional variety, probably without national radio hook-ups.

Leaving here tomorrow, the President will make a 45 minute stop Friday morning at Dubuque, Iowa. He then goes to Oelwein, Iowa, for a five minute stop and thence to St. Paul, Minn., where he is due around 5 p. m., central time, for a 5-hour stop.

the movies?" The fact was noted that practically all movies are written for adults and not for children, with sex and crime as too frequent subjects, and there are other undesirable goals in life too often portrayed. The tawdry is too much in evidence, it was decided. After going into further detail it was emphasized that one of the worst features resulting from children's too frequent attendance at movies was that the too frequent attendance results in a loss of necessary sleep for school children and often in disturbed sleep. Too many movies offer undesirable patterns for conduct to the alert mind against child. But the worst indictment against movies for school children was that of block booking and blind selling by producers with their bad effects. The subject was closed with a strong plea for motion picture appreciation courses for school children, and all present were urged to keep themselves informed on this important subject as reported in the New York P.-T.A. Bulletin.

Playgrounds

The topic of "Playgrounds" was very pleasantly discussed by Mrs. Nichols. She considered it of vital importance to know the child, the playground and its set-up and objectives in order to properly estimate the true value of playgrounds, granting that play is the life of a child. Mrs. Nichols considered playgrounds for children of different ages and explained that the set-up called for three important things, first and most important, being, trained leadership; a leader would know how to utilize all of the facilities of such playgrounds for the good of all of the children, defending the littler ones from the "big bullies," the much older children. Another essential need would be proper equipment and this would be of great value, especially in small schools. Right locations for playgrounds was also emphasized, particularly in consideration of road-crossing with highways filled with automobiles in action. The speaker counted the playgrounds the children's communities. Many other highly desirable features of playgrounds were considered in detail and in closing Mrs. Nichols reminded her hearers that children are not yet fully created, so life is creation for them, where the adult being created needs recreation not necessary to the child.

At this point the program was markedly changed and thoroughly vitalized by the appearance of two wide-awake, bright-eyed, smiling youths, who were presented as living examples of membership in the right kind of youth organizations. Charles Waldo and Ralph Andrews were introduced as members of the Big Brother Junior Republic of New York City, whose one "Big Brother," Harry Schlomker, was the only adult member and the beloved head of the republic. Young Waldo told half of the story, told it well and graphically, answering questions and enthusiastically expressing his boy's deep-down loyalty for the organization which was made up entirely of boys, especially boys from negligent homes or saved from the hands of the law. They lived according to their own constitution; dispensed justice; helped others and were men in the making. The story of this Junior Republic has been so much before the public eye of late in outstanding New York dailies, that it need not be repeated here, for after all the boys themselves were even more convincing than what they told of the value of their beloved republic.

Anderson gave an excellent description of the new six story building given to the boys, but in dilapidated conditions and which they had reconducted until now it is a home for their organization that they are all proud of. He told of their form of government—self-government—their activities, and answered questions in a very wide-awake fashion. Both lads were up-standing, serious with a good command of language, of dignified presence, courteous manners and winning personality that made them the best possible advertisement for the excellence and wonderful achievements of the Junior Republic of New York. Their story with the outstanding statement, which called forth great applause, was that to date there had been no back-sliders from the rules and regulations of the Junior Republic and under its direction, without any adult supervision.

The Part of Books

Miss Mary Schaeffer, senior assistant librarian of Kingston City Library, gave one of the best prepared, most interesting and valuable talks of the afternoon on "The Library as a Specific Community Influence that Touches the Child." Miss Schaeffer came equipped with a suitcase full of the books she talked about, so that seeing could not be believed. Speaking of the large increase in those seeking library books, Miss Schaeffer explained it as being the result of the hard times, some visiting the library to get books that would help them to learn more about the professions they had been in or hoped to be in, others for entertainment in the many not-working days. She particularly mentioned the number of men who were taking from the library books on drawing.

Miss Schaeffer's showing and description of books of fairy tales, cultivating the imagination and a sense of humor and teaching lessons of truth and generosity was fine. Then Miss Schaeffer told of books for the older children of fables, of love, of the operas and tales of the operas, followed by opera scores, used by the opera radio enthusiasts. Practical books were shown and a little courtesy book, and Miss Schaeffer spoke highly of the Peterham books and especially of the story of their earth's treasures. Her thought was to have the child become early in love with books who would be friends through life.

Special books for high school students, particularly pamphlets counselling those wishing to take up trades or other occupations are available and most helpful, particularly as they tell both of the advantages and the disadvantages of certain occupations.

Miss Schaeffer closed her very worth-while talk with a brief, important report on the operation of the travelling libraries of the state.

Church Influence.

"Church" was another community influence considered by the Rev. Russell Gaenzle, who told of the survey results showing the number of children in many communities who have had no religious education of any sort with the result that crime and delinquency abound in such sections. He also told of the examination recently conducted at Cornell University asking questions that it seemed unthinkable that children in enlightened communities could not answer, such as "Who are the three persons of the Trinity?" "What was the transfiguration?" "What are the Beatitudes?" Later we find crime problems, family problems, a moral slapping, and many other ways of living that show the lack of religion. While Mr. Gaenzle advocated religious education, surveys, religious educational conferences, the vital question of the church influencing the life of the child remained hazy and unsolved.

The last subject for the afternoon was "Music," and it was presented by Robert D. Williams, supervisor of music of the Newburgh schools. Mr. Williams told the assembled gathering that being himself a teacher and expecting to address teachers, he had prepared what he had to say in the form of a paper in order that he might take the utmost care to so express himself on his most important subject of "Music and Character." That he could not be misunderstood, he then offered an interesting paper which was listened to attentively and warmly applauded. This brought the afternoon to a close.

Mr. Williams began with a statement that one had to understand just what was meant by character, and he suggested that a danger in the definition of the word often occurred when one thought of the term in relation to morality only. It was his opinion that music "cannot possibly have any effect upon the moral impulses of the child."

Listing some of the effects music does have, the speaker first considered cooperation. He suggested that children singing together or playing in an orchestra learned to cooperate or the final effect was lost. Breaking down cooperation into several parts, Mr. Williams said that physical cooperation was developed when a person was taught not to play or sing louder than his neighbor. Spiritual cooperation evidenced itself when the child was taught to think in harmony with his neighbors. Other topics touched were discrimination and self-reliance, both of which Mr. Williams thought might be obtained through music.

Dempsey Spars For the Democrats

Rochester, N. Y., Oct. 7 (UP).—The once familiar "In this corner, Jack Dempsey" was heard here as the former heavy weight title holder made his first public appearance in the ring in three years.

The Manassas Mauler put the gloves on to spar three rounds last night with Rochester's former heavyweight champion, Mike Conroy, now a local grill proprietor. It was part of Dempsey's political campaign visit here and he didn't swing hard. Even so, he caught the stout Conroy often enough to draw blood from his nose toward the finish. Jack's wrestling show then took over the ring while he got in a few licks for the Democratic ticket.

In a talk before the mat card went on, Dempsey said he didn't think much of the current heavyweight situation.

"Worst it's ever been," he said. "Joe Louis is only the best of a poor lot and that's the best I can say."
